

$50,000,000 CIVIC IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM DRAFTED BY ATLANTA AND FULTON LEADERS

FARLEY DEDICATES 3 POST OFFICES ON GEORGIA VISIT

Postmaster General Lauds
Navy Building and New Deal, Pays Tribute to Airmen, Own Employees.

RIVERS CONTINUES POLITICAL SILENCE

Savannah, Vidalia, Millen, McRae, Fitzgerald Visited by Party Aide.

FITZGERALD, Ga., April 27.—
(P)—Postmaster General James
A. Farley concluded here tonight a whirlwind motor tour across south Georgia in which he dedicated three post offices and made speeches praising the navy building program, President Roosevelt's recovery program, airline operators and pilots, and postal workers.

Accompanied by Governor Rivers, United States Senators Walter George and Richard B. Russell Jr., of Georgia, and other state and national figures of the Democratic party, Farley began his tour at Savannah, on the coast, went northward to Millen, and then headed generally southwest-ward to Vidalia, McRae and Fitzgerald. All in all, he traveled some 250 miles.

No Rivers Statement.
Some political observers had speculated that Farley and Rivers might discuss Rivers' political plans, but if they did so, no announcement came from either.
Rivers has not announced what office he will seek in the September 14 Democratic primary. There has been talk he might run for re-election, or oppose Senator George, who has opposed some of President Roosevelt's policies. Rivers described himself as a 100 per cent New Dealer.

Fitzgerald, south-central Georgia city with a 1930 population of 6,412, was host tonight to the convention of the South Georgia Postal Employees' Association, at which Farley was chief speaker.

Tomorrow, Farley will speak in Prattville, Ala., and from there will go to Montgomery. He will visit Pensacola, Panama City and Tallahassee, Fla., Friday and be in Jacksonville Saturday.

In his speech here, Farley praised postal workers as "a great influence for good."

At Vidalia, Farley praised the New Deal as embodying the principles enunciated in the Declaration of Independence and in the preamble of the constitution, and said: "This federal building will stand as a reminder of our great President and leader, Franklin D.
Roosevelt, who, in carrying out his far-reaching plans for the restoration and recovery of our national prosperity, seized the opportunity to provide employment for the masses and to turn the wheels of business with a building program."

Praises Air Pilots.

At Millen, where a $65,000 post office was dedicated, Farley paid tribute to the courage and ingenuity of the nation's air mail pilots and airline operators, and praised Harlee Branch, second assistant.

Millen's Key to City Is Presented to Farley

Keys to the city are nothing new to these men, but after Mayor Walter Harrison, of Millen, presented one yesterday to Postmaster General James Farley (right), the Democratic chairman and Senator Walter F.
cation ceremonies to give it a thorough-going inspection.

Proposal To Divert Gas Taxes From Road De- partment Is Voted Down

By HERMAN HANCOCK,
Constitution Staff Writer.

MACON, Ga., April 27.—Electing Charles A. Matthews, of De-Kalb county, president, defeating a proposal to divert gasoline tax receipts from the Highway Department to counties, the Association County Commissioners of Georgia in final convention sessions here today commended President Roosevelt and Governor Rivers.

Matthews succeeds Frank M.
Kimble, of Worth county. Savannah was designated the convention city for the 1939 convention. Macon and Valdosta also filed bids for the next annual session.

Centralization Hit.

Association members also approved decentralization of administration of social security in Georgia when they approved a resolution calling for county control. Representative Randall Evans, McDuffie county attorney, was author of the measure.

The Atlanta Constitution was praised for "rendering a distinct public service" in the $7,500 Progressive Government Awards for 1937 and for the Plant-to-Prosper program now being fostered. Resolutions offered by the resolution committee were adopted by unanimous vote.

Evans also offered a resolution proposing to divert one cent of the four-cent share of the state gasoline tax to offset losses sustained by the state.

Ford Asserts F. D. R. Talk A 'Long Story'

Magnate Arrives in New York To Speak Before Publishers.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(P)— Henry Ford on arrival here tonight said his White House conference today with President Roosevelt would make "a long story"— and he didn't tell it.

The tanned, slightly stooped automobile manufacturer, in high spirits, turned questions on reporters and laughed off most in-terrogatory thrusts in an interview that went something like this:

"How was the trip?"

"Very nice."

"How about the conference with the President?"

"That was very nice too; very nice."

A Long Story.

"Did you reach any definite conclusions with the President?"

"That's a long story." The reply was barely audible, almost a whisper.

"Did you know that G. Hall Roosevelt, (Mrs. Roosevelt's brother who is credited with arranging the conference) described the meeting as 'just a pleasant family conversation'?" Does this mean you patched up any differences with the President?"

"I've never had any falling out with him. What makes you think that? I have never criticized him."
"If you've never criticized him do you think the New Deal is okay? What do you think of it?"
"I won't answer that."
At this point Ford playfully

County Commissioners Pay Tribute To Constitution for Public Service

By STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

MACON, Ga., April 27.—Members of the Association County Commissioners of Georgia interrupted closing sessions of the 24th annual convention here today to pay tribute to the "distinct public service" being rendered by The Atlanta Constitution.

Judge Frank E. Gabrels, acting chairman of the resolutions committee, presented the measure, and it was adopted by unanimous vote.
The resolutions were predicated on The Constitution's 7,500 Progressive Government Awards for 1937, and the Plant-to-Prosper program, which is being conducted this year.

When Commissioner W. D. Mc-Cranie, of Dodge county, which won the $3,500 first award in the Progressive Government Awards competition, was introduced for his address, President Frank M.
Kimble, presiding, said:

"I don't wonder that Dodge county won The Constitution's first award. He has had a broad smile since this convention opened.
I want him to come up here and explain how he did it."

McCranie accompanied his address by many pictures of county activities.

After President Matthews had been installed, he said:

"Mr. McCranie was lucky

LA FOLLETTE GETS MORE ROOM FOR THIRD PARTY TALK

Overflowing Crowd Expected To Hear Liberals Discuss Platform Ideals; Building Will Seat 3,500.

ROOSEVELT AIDE TO ATTEND MEETING

Governor Reported Ready To 'Soften' Attacks on Administration Program

MADISON, Wis., April 27.—(P)— Governor Philip F. La Follette, expecting an overflow crowd, has moved to a larger building tomorrow night's meeting to sound out sentiment on a third party in national politics.

The conference of Liberals originally was scheduled for the armory, but the response to La Fol-lette's call, issued last week during a series of radio talks, has been such that larger quarters became necessary.

The meeting has been changed to the University of Wisconsin stock pavilion, which seats 3,500.
Working On Speech.

The Governor remained in seclusion, working on the speech in which he is expected to disclose the third party plan. Close friends said he would deal mainly with platform ideas.

What the party philosophy would be has not been revealed, but the Governor last week assailed President Roosevelt's recovery program as "tinkering and patching," and on several occasions has declared:

F. D. R. Aide to Attend.

"The test of democracy is whether we are producing more real wealth at the end of each year than the year before."

The meeting has drawn the attention of national figures, and there has been much comment in Washington. President Roosevelt told a press conference yesterday to promote liberal policies the better.

Mr. Roosevelt said A. A. Berle, assistant secretary of state, would be here, but in a personal capacity. He will be the only administration man in attendance.

MUTUAL FRIENDS SEEK TO HALT ATTACKS

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(P)—
Some mutual friends of President Roosevelt and the La Follettes of Wisconsin are seeking to prevent any further La Follette attacks upon the national administration.

Working behind the scenes, they are telling the La Follette men that a break between the White House and the La Follettes would be a severe blow to the "Progressive movement."

Their immediate objective is to see that tomorrow night's conference of liberals at Madison, Wis., confines itself to a discussion of local issues.

Certain friends of Mr. Roosevelt say privately that the Governor has "softened" somewhat in his attitude since his radio address, and they express hope that tomorrow night's meeting, insofar as the press and public are notified, will be only mildly critical, if critical at all, of the national administration.

POLITICAL REALIGNMENT IS SEEN BY LA GUARDIA

ST. LOUIS, April 27.—(P)— Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, said today he thought there would be a political realignment, rather than a third party, by 1940.

The division on economic issues will bring a coalition of all "progressive forces," he asserted in an interview. It won't be important, he added, whether present party labels are maintained or new ones created.

LaGuardia merely said, "It's all right," when asked his opinion of the meeting of "liberals" called by Governor La Follette, of Wisconsin.

GERMANY PLANS TO TAKE PROPERTY FROM ALL JEWS

Decree Orders Approximately 750,000 Semites To Register Their Fortunes at Home, Abroad.

ACTION RESULTS FROM 4-YEAR PLAN

Nazis Want To Be Able To Place Finger on Spot Where Funds Are Located

BERLIN, April 27.—(P)—A high authority tonight disclosed the German government plans to take over all Jewish property "in due course of time" and to encourage Jews to emigrate from Germany.

This disclosure was made in explanation of a new decree requiring the approximately 750,000 Jews in greater Germany to register their fortunes and properties both at home and abroad.

The decree was issued today by Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, No. 2 Nazi, as director of Germany's four-year plan to gain economic independence.

"The decree is intended to place on a legal footing the gradual elimination of the Jew from German business life, in that he is to be assured that the properties declared are actually his and will not simply be taken away from him by unauthorized action," the authority said.

Can Proceed with Plan.

Once the exact figures are known, he continued, the government can proceed with its plan.

Significance was seen in the paragraph of the decree which said:

"The controller of the four-year plan (Goering) may take such measures as may be deemed fit to insure utilization of properties falling under the terms in consequence with interests of German economy."

The decree as a whole was regarded as an outgrowth of the looting of Jewish shops in Vienna and elsewhere in Austria.

Being able at any moment to place a finger on any spot where Jewish fortunes or properties are located, significant enough in itself, acquires additional meaning in the light of an editorial published in Das Schwarze Korps, organ of the Nazi S. S. troops, which often correctly forecasts intended anti-Jewish legislation.

To Persuade Jews.

Written before the decree was in print, the editorial said numerous Vienna Jews were trying to get to Berlin on the assumption that the worst there was over and life would be easier for them.

"On the contrary," said the newspaper, "we must force Jews to remain at their parasitical posts until their money is gone."

"We must persuade them by all means that they cannot remain in the reich and that it is better for them to pay the flight of capital tax today than to be shipped off tomorrow or the day after to Palestine or Madagascar—a solution which will come about sooner or later as soon as some other nations wake up to common sense."

'Please Don't Shoot!' Fails To Save Woman

Mrs. Lucille Coggins, who was shot and wounded by her estranged conferring with him about a pending divorce. "Please don't shoot," the woman pleaded with her husband.

Young Wife Shot, Wounded By Mate Near Law Office

Mrs. Lucille Coggins Confronted by Husband After Seeing Attorney.

An attractive young woman was shot and wounded by her estranged husband late yesterday afternoon as she left a law office where she had been conferring about her pending divorce.

The victim, Mrs. Lucille Coggins, 27, of 592 Milledge court, S.
E., was admitted to Grady hospital. Doctors said her condition was not serious, although she had been struck by three bullets fired from a .38 caliber automatic pistol.

The shooting occurred on the stairway of a building at 100 1-2 Hunter street, corner of Pryor street, across from the Fulton county courthouse, as scores of persons passed outside during the peak of the home-going rush hour.

Husband Sought.

Police said they are seeking her husband, W. L. (Bill) Coggins, 35, of 1024 Sells avenue, S. W., an employee of a telegraph company.

Mrs. Coggins, who was divorced from her first husband a few years ago, went to see her attorneys, R. B. Giles and A. J. Hall, who have offices on the second floor of the Hunter street building, at about 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon. She was wearing her Easter clothes.

She was accompanied by a young woman friend, whose name was not learned. From her attorneys, Mrs. Coggins learned that the divorce suit, charging cruel treatment and filed last

JAPAN SPURNS RED PLEA ON FRICTION

Moscow Offers To Meet Tokyo Half Way; Nip- ponese Want Fish Pact.

MOSCOW, April 27.—(P)—Soviet Russia tonight announced a deadline in efforts to compose troubled relations with Japan in the Far East.

An official communique declared the Soviet Union had appealed to Tokyo to meet it halfway in settlement of nearly a dozen disputes which have caused Russo-Japanese friction to increase in recent months.

The announcement disclosed Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Slavut-sky visited Foreign Minister Koki Hirota in Tokyo April 4 proposing five concessions from Japan in return for a similar number from Russia.

Hirota countered by further Japanese demands and a refusal of part of the Soviet program, the communique said.

Russia asked:

1. Immediate return of a Soviet mail plane detained with its crew in Manchoukuo.

Ask Release of Steamer.

2. Release of the Soviet steamer Wimpel with its passengers and crew.

3. Release of the steamer Kuz-netstroye.

4. Release of four Soviet citizens.

Coogan Estate Put at $535,923 And The Kid Is Said To Own It $171

LOS ANGELES, April 27.—(P)—for this terrible condition of af-statement on learning of the report. "I have not yet had an opportunity to examine the report fully, but it shows that virtually all of my earnings, except those invested in real estate, have been dissipated."

Bernstein has been manager of the Coogan interests since 1926.
Two years ago, a year following the death of "Big Jack" Coogan, he married Mrs. Coogan.

Bibb, "I found no evidence whatever of any illegal or irregular transactions. There is more work to be done."

CITIZEN-COUNCIL GROUP WILL SEEK U. S., PRIVATE AID

Plan Ranges From Paving and Hospitalization to Completion of Stone Mountain Memorial.

ALL OF PROJECTS ARE TO DOVETAIL

Tax Bill Must Be Footed
Even If No Money Is Obtained, Members Say.

A vast public improvement program to cost about $50,000,000 was mapped for Atlanta and Fulton county yesterday by a special citizens-council committee as plans for seeking federal and private financial aid were outlined at the initial meeting of the newly formed group.

The program is designed to coordinate needed improvements, including:

Better health and hospitalization systems;

Improved library systems;

Stone Mountain Memorial.

Completion of the Stone Mountain memorial;

Building and remodeling city and county schools;

Relief of traffic problems;

Development of a downtown park and residential playgrounds and historic parks;

Street widening, paving and repaving, and development of through-traffic routes to facilitate traffic flow and preserve downtown property values;

Completion of the metropolitan sewer system; and Development of airways facilities.

Voting to invite the county to appoint four additional members to the 10-man committee, members declared the committee will assemble all project data from organized groups to present it in concrete form to various agencies from which money is to be sought at the most advantageous rates to the local governments.

Many Sources of Funds.

Sources from which the money could be obtained include the WPA, which was reported to be spending $1,000,000 a month now in Fulton county, the PWA, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, federal health and education agencies, the Rockefeller Foundation, the Julius Rosenwald Foundation, and other private organizations with money for public improvements.

Various designated project committees in the city and county will be asked to gather and submit to the public improvement committee the facts and figures on all projects which they consider to be needed by the city and county.

Individual projects will not be stant postmaster general and naval division, who heads the air mail division.

He referred to observance of National Air Mail Week, May 15 to 21, and urged Georgians to determine for themselves how this service expedites delivery of letters to distant points in both the United States and many foreign countries.

In McRae, home town of former Governor Talmadge, a critic of the Roosevelt administration, Farley did not touch on politics. Instead, he recounted the growth of the post office department since 1871. He mentioned again the speeded service provided through aviation.

Speaking at a breakfast given in Savannah before leaving to dedicate the post offices, Farley referred to the visit there of the new U. S. cruiser Savannah and said:

"Your navy is the best and most economical form of insurance against aggression that the American people could possibly buy."

The party's itinerary today included stops at Pooler, Bloomingdale, Eden, Stilson, Brooklet, Statesboro, Galet, Summit, Graymont, Swainsboro, Oak Park, Lyons, Ailey, Mount Vernon, Glenwood and Alamo.

Personnel of Party. Included in the party were Ambrose O'Connell, Farley's executive assistant; Charles Reid, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee; Chairman James P. Houlihan of the Chatham county commission; Harlee Branch, second assistant postmaster general; John Cooke, of Atlanta, state RFC director; John Spivey, president of the Georgia senate; Andrew Smith, Governor Rivers' naval aide; John J. to be done, however, and this report is but a preliminary one.

"I am unable at this time to make any explanation as to the difference between the amount Jackie claimed he made and what there is left."

Mrs. Bernstein, in an informal answer to Jackie's demand for his millions, declared his income during his minority totaled only $1,300,000.

The inventory of Biby shows that Jackie himself owes Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc., $171.96 in sums expended in his behalf.

Jackie's mother owns gross assets of $39,443.57, the report continued, and her indebtedness consists of $7,500 in notes to a bank, secured by 400 shares of stock of General Motors and Loew's. Also, although she has four bank accounts in different names, she has only $519.57 in cash.

Bernstein, Jackie's stepfather, was shown to have gross assets of $2,635, but he was shown to owe the Coogan Production Company $42,821 and the Coogan Finance Company $6,031.82.

A beer distributing agency, owned by Bernstein, owes $1,730.25 to the Coogan Finance Company (originally formed to finance automobile loans), the report said.

The statement of Coogan Productions involved a bewildering number of complex transactions, including mortgages, notes receivable, accounts and loans receivable and trust deeds receivable.

The Jackie Coogan Productions, Inc., which acted as a "family budget system," was shown to have $696,304.30 in gross assets, but only $535,923.70 in net assets, because of obligations and depreciations.

Immediate payment of the $1,450,000 due Russia March 25 from Manchoukio as part of the purchase of the Chinese-Eastern railway.

Return Russia offered to: 1. Release eight Japanese held in reprisal for the Wimpel's detention.

2. Release Japanese fishing boats in custody.

3. Favorably consider Japan's claims to concessions on Sakhalin island where the Japanese seek to build an oil pipeline.

4. Resumption of parcel post traffic with Japan which was interrupted in reprisal for seizure of the Soviet mail plane.

5. Permission for Japan to keep a consulate at Oka, on Sakhalin island.

Hirota replied with demands for immediate signing of a new fisheries agreement, and refused to consider return of the Russian planes, release of the motorboat Dalles, or the railway claim.

On the latter point he referred Russia to Manchoukio, Japan's puppet state carved out of Manchuria.

Soviet authorities said negotiation of a fishing treaty would require some time.

Hold Japan Responsible. Although holding Japan responsible for Manchoukio's actions and debts, the communiqué said Moscow had appealed to Manchoukio for satisfaction without success.

"We are waiting for a definite answer from Japan on the proposals formulated by us. In case of a favorable answer we are ready to specify concessions which we consider possible on the basis of existing agreements," said the communiqué.

DUBLIN, Ga., April 27.—Senior students of the commercial department of the Dublin High school are getting some practical experience this week, working at Dublin business houses. The plan is one followed here every year through the co-operation of merchants and others, to round out the students' academic work and to give them an insight into what is in store for them when they have finished school and started earning a living.

No Individual Projects. The committee yesterday decided not to sponsor any individual project and announced a picture of the needs of the city county as a whole will be its objective.

It plans to take up general project subjects at different meetings and to consider the entire need of each subject separately, assembling all subjects in the complete picture later.

When this is done, the committee will determine what agency could supply the necessary aid at the least cost. Some projects may be done with WPA labor, where costs of materials for the work is small. Others can be accomplished through RFC self-liquidating loans. Still others would be eligible for grants from the PWA or the federal education and health funds.

Some of the projects would be in line for help from the various private foundations.

County commissioners are to be asked to name four members to the special committee immediately. The committee suggested that two members of the commission and two citizens be appointed.

Committee members said yesterday that Atlanta and Fulton county must take advantage of the federal funds now being spent for public improvements, because whether or not the money comes to the city and county citizens will have to repay their share of it.

Proposals for huge appropriations running into the billions are now before congress.

Expect New Funds. Committeemen anticipated additional federal funds will be made available.

At present, most of the federal funds spent here and allocated at the insistence of individuals or small groups who place "pressure" on officials for special projects without full consideration of the whole problem, they asserted.

It was to rectify this that the public improvements committee was created.

LEMUEL C. BUTLER, PIONEER NEWSBOY, DIES IN 84TH YEAR

One of Three Who First Delivered 'Constitution' Saw Atlanta's Fall.

Lemuel C. Butler, pioneer Atlantan, and one of the first three newsboys to carry The Constitution, died yesterday morning in a private hospital. He was 84 years old.

Born in what is now the Lakewood Heights section, he and his mother took rooms on the third floor of the Connally building at Whitehall and Alabama streets, in 1863. Following its destruction by fire, supposedly set by Yankee spies before the fall of the town, they lived on Pryor street.

One of the few families to remain after the populace was ordered to evacuate, the Butlers witnessed Sherman's occupation and destruction of the town. His mother supported herself and family by boarding Yankee soldiers. The only fuel obtainable then, Mr. Butler said, was the charred beams of their friends' homes.

He witnessed the paving of Alabama street, the first in the city. He remembered when Marietta street was known as "Snake Nation," and Peters street "Hell's Half Acre."

The Constitution's press room foreman about 60 years ago, he later operated a general merchandise store in Cedar town. In 1902 he devoted himself to managing his farms in Clayton county, and he had made his home here for the last 13 years. He lived at 145 Norwood avenue, N. E.

Mr. Butler was a charter member of the Grace Methodist church here. Lately, he became a member of the First Church of the Nazarene, and was a trustee and member of the board of stewards at the time of his death.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the First Church of the Nazarene, with the Rev. E. K. Hardy, and the Rev. P. P. Bellew officiating. Burial will be in Rock Springs cemetery, under the direction of A. S. Turner.

Surviving are his wife; one son, Walter H. Butler; two daughters, Miss Tennie Butler, Atlanta, and Mrs. G. C. Clark, Rex, Ga., and ten grandchildren.

EDITOR T. H. EWING DIES ON AUTO TRIP

Directing Head of Two Monroes, La., Newspapers Is Stricken Suddenly.

PASS CHRISTIAN, Miss., April 27.—(P)—Toulmin H. Ewing, 43, editor of the two Monroe, La., newspapers, the News Star and the Morning World, died last night while en route by automobile from Monroe to the Ewing summer home on the Gulf coast here.

Mr. Ewing was a native of New Orleans and a son of the late Colonel Robert Ewing, former owner and publisher of the New Orleans States. His mother was the late former Miss May Dunbrack, of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Mr. Ewing was directing head of the Monroe papers. He was an overseas veteran of the World War and served as first lieutenant in the third artillery division of the regular army.

Mr. Ewing appeared in sound health when he left Monroe at 6:30 p. m. His chauffeur, Bruce Pittman, said that en route he noticed that Mr. Ewing was breathing heavily but that he paid little attention to it because Mr. Ewing often slept in the car while they were on trips to the coast.

JOHN R. HEARST'S WIFE WINS DIVORCE

Publisher's Son Loses Custody of Child.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., April 27.—(P)—Mrs. Gretchen Wilson Hearst was granted a divorce today from John Randolph Hearst, son of the publisher.

She won custody of their four-year-old son, John Randolph Hearst Jr.

Circuit Judge C. E. Chillingworth ordered Hearst to "pay to the plaintiff such sums as alimony and for support of the child as the court may hereafter from time to time fix by appropriate order, for all of which the court retains jurisdiction."

She said Hearst's actions after their marriage at San Simeon, Cal., March 4, 1933, shattered her nerves and impaired her health.

WARM, PARTLY CLOUDY FORECAST FOR TODAY

Atlanta will have partly cloudy weather today with little change in prevailing temperatures, the United States weather bureau predicted last night.

The minimum reading yesterday was 59 and the maximum was 78. Today's extremes are expected to be about the same.

Other items covered included oats, truck crops and Irish potatoes, "greatly improved;" sweet potatoes, "favorable;" tobacco, "irregular in some districts but greatly helped by recent rains;" peaches, "good growth;" and cane "in good condition and growing well."

Traffic Deaths Drop 22 Per Cent As Safety Drives Show Results

CHICAGO, April 27.—(AP)—Americans are winning their ceaseless struggle to curb sudden death on streets and highways.

That was the most significant indication today in the National Safety Council's report that traffic fatalities had been reduced in March for the fifth consecutive month after mounting steadily for five years.

Atlanta ranked 23rd among cities of 250,000 to 500,000 population, with a death rate of 30 per 100,000 persons. Atlanta had eight deaths in March this year compared with one in March, 1937, and 21 in the first three months of 1938 against 11 for the first three months of 1937.

March deaths over the nation numbered 2,180 compared with 2,790 in the same month in 1937. The decrease was 22 per cent, the sharpest in any month since the unbroken decline began last November.

In the first quarter of the current year, 7,100 persons died as a result of motor vehicle accidents in contrast to the 8,650 victims counted in a similar period last year. The reduction was 18 per cent.

A council spokesman attributed the encouraging trend to a growing safety consciousness stemming from campaigns of education and traffic law enforcement implemented by new legislation.

Milwaukee had the lowest traffic death rate among cities with more than 500,000 population. During the first three months of 1938 it had 6.7 fatalities per 100,000 residents. Boston ranked second with 8.1, and St. Louis third, with 9.6.

3 BILLS TO SPEED JUSTICE PROPOSED

Judge Dorsey Asks Grand Jury To Seek Enactment of the Legislation.

Three bills designed to accelerate administration of criminal law and to simplify grand jury procedure were placed before the Fulton county grand jury yesterday in enacting the bills into law.

The bills were turned over to Grand Jury Foreman A. L. Belle Isle by Fulton Superior Judge Hugh M. Dorsey with the request the jury appoint a committee of three to get in touch with the Fulton delegation in the legislature.

1. Prosecution by solicitor general of all misdemeanor and felony cases, except capital felonies, on accusation, after commitment by a court of inquiry, without indictment by a grand jury—except in felony cases where grand jury indictment and indictment is demanded by the defendant. The demand must be in writing and filed five days after commitment.

2. Compelling attendance of witnesses who are subpoenaed by the grand jury, and to punish them by a fine not to exceed $300 and by imprisonment not to exceed 20 days.

3. Authorization of superior court judges to continue grand juries in session beyond the end of any term of court for which they were originally impaneled, and to draw and impanel special grand juries in addition to the grand jury already drawn and impaneled for any regular or special term of court.

In concise form, the bills were prepared by committees of the Atlanta Bar Association, appointed by John T. Dennis, president, after Judge Dorsey requested him to do so. Judge Dorsey was authorized to make the request by the present grand jury.

Would Amend Code.
The second bill is in the form of an amendment to the Georgia code.

Under the third bill a special grand jury could be impaneled for the purpose of continuing or completing any investigation begun by another jury. The special jury would serve at the same time of a regular grand jury.

"Any grand jury continued beyond the regular term or any special grand jury shall continue to serve until discharged by the court," the bill provides.

In his letter to Belle Isle, Judge Dorsey said:

"I am authorized to state that my associate in the criminal division of the superior court, Judge Paul J. Etheridge, and your able adviser, Mr. E. E. Andrews, assistant solicitor general, concur with me in the opinion that each and all of these bills are advisable and should be enacted into law. They also believe them to be in splendid legal form. May I not ask that your body in your presentments express thanks to Mr. John T. Dennis and to the members of the bar who have gratuitously rendered public service in the matters referred to?"

"Mr. Hastings, our representative in the legislature, stated to me more than two years ago that he would be very glad to foster bill No. 1, provided I would furnish him a properly drawn bill. Therefore I suggest that that bill be put under his special care. I have no suggestions as to who should handle the other two bills, but the representatives, no doubt, will distribute them or may wish to join together in introducing them.

Offer Co-operation.
"The lawyers drawing these bills have all stated that they would be very glad to have the representatives confer with them at any time with reference to these bills and all of them stand ready, if necessary, to appear before any legislative committee to discuss any legal objections that might be raised at any time to the passage of these bills."

The three committees of attorneys who prepared the bills included Madison Richardson, F. M. Bird and Hugh Dorsey Jr.; Frank Carter, Lovejoy Harwell and F. M. Bird; Morgan Belser, F. M. Bird and James W. Dorsey.

WAGES-HOURS BILL BELIEVED STYMIED

House Rules Committee Expected To Refuse Privileged Status.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP) Administration leaders in congress virtually abandoned hope today of getting a wages-hours bill through the house at this session because of opposition in the house rules committee.

The rules committee will meet tomorrow to decide whether to give the revised measure privileged status on the house calendar. Influential members said they saw little chance of favorable action.

Only four of the ten Democratic members are known to favor the legislation and the support of at least two of the four Republicans was said to be doubtful. The measure could be brought to the house floor by a petition from a majority of the house members, but doubt was expressed that the required 218 signatures could be obtained.

The rules committee blocked the original wages-hours bill last year. It was brought to the floor by petition and then returned to the labor committee for revision.

The revised measure now pending in the rules committee would establish a minimum wage starting at 25 cents an hour and increasing to 40 cents at the end of three years. The maximum work week would start at 44 hours and decrease to 40 hours in two years.

Both the American Federation of Labor and Labor's Non-Partisan League, affiliated with the CIO, supported the bill in statements issued tonight.

The AFL asking its members to write their congressmen, said the present measure "can properly be regarded as the American Federation of Labor bill." The AFL opposed the original measure, principally because of the discretionary power given to an administrative board.

Last year, about 40,000,000 pounds of strawberries were frozen for sale in frozen pack state.

SLOAN DENOUNCES RULING BY EDICTS

Motorcar Industry 'Stands at Crossroads,' He Tells Association.

DETROIT, April 27.—(AP)—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of General Motors Corporation, told the nation's organized automobile dealers tonight the motorcar industry "stands at the crossroads" on the question of solving its difficulties "from within through a spirit of co-operation," or from without "by government edict."

Addressing the closing session of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, Sloan advocated a forum for discussion of policies as they affect dealer-manufacturer relationship and involve the interests of the customer.

"Government," Sloan said, "is essential to protect and develop our civilization. But let us have government by law—thou shalt or shalt not—not government by edict. Political control of industry may be likened to a cancer within the human body. It starts, it grows, it consumes and ultimately destroys."

"The exploitation of industry through the political consideration is damaging enough when limited to due process or law. Look at the picture today!"

L. & N. REVENUE DROPS BELOW HALF MILLION

TELEGRAPH RATE INCREASE DENIED

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP) The Federal Communications Commission denied today an application by the principal telegraph companies for a 15 per cent increase in domestic rates.

Five commissioners voted to deny the increase. Two others favored granting of an increase for one year.

Companies which asked for the increase were Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, Mackay Radio & Telegraph Company (California), Mackay Radio & Telegraph Company (Delaware), the Western Union Telegraph Company and R. C. A. Communications, Inc.

TWO YOUTHS HELD FOR GRAND JURY IN HIT-RUN DEATH

Charged With Manslaughter in Connection With Fatal Rainwater Accident.

Two youths arrested in the hit-run death of an Atlanta woman were held yesterday afternoon on $1,000 bond each for the grand jury on charges of manslaughter. They were Marshall Shirley, 20, of 495 Angier avenue, and Lee Powell, 21, of 939 Pryor street.

The pair was arraigned before Recorder John L. Cone in connection with the death of Mrs. Georgia Rainwater, 54, of 576 Luckie street, who was struck down by a speeding liquor car at State street and Hemphill avenue on the night of April 17.

Shirley, accompanied by his attorney, W. R. Bentley, surrendered to police a few hours after the accident. At that time, six charges were placed against him.

The charges included reckless driving and accident, leaving the scene of an accident, violating the state motor vehicle laws, disorderly conduct, murder, disorderly conduct, whisky, and speeding 60 miles an hour.

Powell was arrested two days later, on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Recorder Cone dismissed other charges, however, and bound over the defendants on the manslaughter charge only. Shirley reportedly signed a confession the night he surrendered, and police investigators said they found a license tag receipt belonging to Powell in the car.

Denies Being in Car. Powell admitted ownership of the receipt, but denied being in the car when it struck Mrs. Rainwater, crashed into a telephone pole and then halted up a small embankment.

At the hearing yesterday afternoon, witnesses failed to positively identify the pair as the men who fled from the car, but one witness said he saw two men run from the car "who were about their size and shape."

Two cases and two pints of liquor were found in the wrecked vehicle.

Mrs. Rainwater's son, James, was in a drugstore on the corner when the crash occurred. He ran out to discover his own mother was the victim. Mrs. Rainwater's death marked the 22d traffic fatality within the city limits since the first of the year.

JAPANESE BATTLE SONS OF PROPHET

Offensive in Northwest Seeks To Cut Off Supplies From Russians.

SHANGHAI, April 28.—(Thursday)—(P)—Japanese forces have launched a drive into Mohammedan Northwest China, where Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has called upon Chinese Sons of the Prophet to rally to his standard.

The new drive, in the direction of Outer-Mongolian spheres of Soviet influence, apparently is designed to sever the ancient silk caravan routes which have been used to bring Russian war supplies to Chiang's armies.

In the southern Shantung province area of major hostilities, Japanese told of minor advances against the Lunghai railway.

Shanghai itself found new British-Japanese tension relieved today with the release of the British steamer Tungwo, which had been halted by Japanese on complaint that a Chinese passenger had fired a pistol at a Japanese soldier.

It had been understood a British gunboat was ready to effect release of the vessel by force, if necessary.

In the campaign into Mohammedan northwestern provinces the new battleground was within 100 miles of Outer Mongolia.

It was believed Japanese might attempt to set up a buffer area through which Russian war supplies to China would flow with difficulty.

China has launched a propaganda campaign to counteract Japanese activity, sending Chinese Moslems to the area to preach war against the Japanese.

In addition to receiving Russian supplies, China has been aided indirectly by Soviet troop concentrations on the Manchoukuo-Soviet border. Japanese have been forced to match the "protective" concentrations by holding large numbers of first-line troops in Manchoukuo.

Kirsten Flagstad Sings Tonight Closing Atlanta's Musical Season

Norwegian Genius Will Be Heard at Fox Theater in Concert Beginning at 8:30 O'Clock; Will Be Her Third Appearance Here.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

Kirsten Flagstad, brilliant Norwegian soprano, who is easily queen of the musical universe, will close the current season of the All-Star Concert Series at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the Fox theater.

Her two concerts here last season convinced Atlantans that they were privileged to hear one of the most marvelous voices they had ever listened to, and her return this year was the result of an overwhelming demand.

Just a few Sundays ago, Lawrence Gilman, New York critic, devoted his entire column to a tribute to Flagstad and her art. It was a long column, beautifully written. A few excerpts, quoted below, give a clear idea of the magnitude of her art:

Mr. Gilman says: "The purpose of this column, on the present occasion, is to pay tribute to an artist of unprecedented quality who completes this season her third year at the Metropolitan; a period of artistic achievement for which one seeks in vain a parallel in that echoing house of memories. There were artists of extraordinary greatness at the Metropolitan before that Saturday afternoon in February, 1935, when Kirsten Flagstad made her American debut as Sieglinde. There are great artists today among her colleagues at the Metropolitan, and they have been the object of repeated salutations in this place. There will be, beyond question, great artists after that lamentable day when she decides to sing no more. But nature does not duplicate the choicest of her instruments of beauty and revelation. There has been no second Palestrina, no second William Byrd or Henry Purcell or William Blake or Shelley, no second Bach or Mozart, no second Beethoven, Schubert, Brahms, Debussy. . . .

"Flagstad is such a one. If I were asked whether at the Metropolitan I had ever heard her like (and I have heard all those of comparable rank, except Materna), I should have to say that I had not."

CROCHETING HELPS FARM.

Mrs. E. F. Aker, of Pocasset, Okla., has learned that a crochet needle is an excellent instrument to wield in obtaining farm improvements. She has made approximately $50 from collars which she has crocheted. Out of this sum she has put aside enough to pay for baby chickens and brooder repairs.

Lo Medico recently completed eight sculptural reliefs for the federal building at Wilmington, N. C.

Tragic Tale of Confederate Bill Wins $5 Photo Tip for Atlantan

Story of Hen That Laid Six-Ounce Egg Brings $1 to Owner in Constitution's Weekly Contest for Good Local Stories.

An Atlanta young woman turned a Confederate bill into present-day money by winning the first prize of $5 for the best Photo Tip of last week.

The winner is Miss Ellen St. John Barnwell, of 776 St. Charles avenue, who owns the Confederate bill that told the tragic financial story of currency in the south during the War Between the States. The bill bears the likeness of her maternal great-grandmother, Ellen St. John, wife of Thomas St. John, of Mobile, Ala., and shows Mrs. St. John knitting socks for the boys in gray. The portrait was placed on $3 bills.

Another Photo Tip winner is C. C. Glenn, of Route 1, Decatur, who came into The Constitution offices with two products of one of his white leghorn hens.

The hen one day last week laid a conventional sized egg and then surprised Glenn the following day by laying an egg that weighed six ounces.

Glenn won a dollar for this picture and story.

Many other Photo Tips came into The Constitution, but a rush of other news kept them out of the paper. They will be used, however, and the Photo Tipsters will receive their cash awards after stories and pictures appear.

YOUR OIL FREE

(UP TO THE FULL MARK) IF I FORGET TO CHECK IT

It's dangerous to RUN LOW ON OIL. You can just about wreck your engine if you do. New bearings cost plenty. So do new rings and pistons.

To keep your car out of the shop, we Shell dealers make this proposition:

Drive into any one of our stations. If we don't check your oil—and you call us—we'll bring your oil level right up to the full mark free.

We'll put in Golden Shell, too—the oil that has been refined especially for today's stop-and-go driving.

Maybe you never knew that stop and go calls for a certain kind of oil. Well, it does—and here's the reason why:

You average ten cold starts a day. If your oil is slow-flowing, one start can cause as much wear as 50 miles of steady running.

Golden Shell changes this. It's fast-flowing. The second you step on your starter, it coats each engine part with a tough oil film that doesn't break down . . . even under the heat of your steady running.

Remember—there's no finer oil than Golden Shell at any price.

MUTUAL DEFENSE IS FIRST ON AGENDA OF FRANCE, BRITAIN

Willert Dubs Foreign Policy
'Olive Branch in Mailed Fist'

By SIR ARTHUR WILLERT.
(Copyright, 1935, for The Constitution
and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

LONDON, April 27.—(By Wireless)—Military preparedness and mutual defense are likely to bulk large—if not publicly, anyhow behind the scenes—at tomorrow's Anglo-French conversations.

The new British budget and the presence here of France's Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet represent integral parts of Prime Minister Chamberlain's policy of European appeasement. It is the policy of the olive branch in the mailed fist. It consists of rearming almost on a wartime basis, partly for defense and partly in hopes of persuading Germany sooner or later that, in view of the growing strength of the western democracies, discretion is the better part of valor and that the time has come to take advantage of the standing offer of the democracies to negotiate constructively.

For this policy, the closest possible relations between France and Great Britain are as essential as the preparedness of the two countries. Downing Street feels that the stronger the Franco-British combination, the more likely are the German extremists to be kept under in the struggle which is believed still to be progressing between the democracies and the moderates in Berlin.

Largely on account of the defense problem, Spain will be another important item in the conversations. The French ministers are expected to argue that the question of Anglo-French defense depends to no small extent upon the future of Spain. They are expected to point out that, much as they welcome the British agreement with Italy and want to have one of their own with Italy, the real problem in Spain, if and when General Franco wins, will be getting not the Italians, but the Germans out of the country.

DUTCH TO REVAMP FOREIGN POLICY

Diplomats Summoned for Conference at The Hague.

AMSTERDAM, April 27.—(By Wireless)—The Netherlands, hemmed in by powerful neighbors, today took unprecedented steps to bring her foreign policy into line with swiftly changing Europe.

Foreign Minister J. A. P. Patijn announced he had summoned the Netherlands ministers from London, Paris, Berlin and Brussels for a conference at The Hague May 13.

The diplomatic conference—first ever held in the Netherlands—will review the nation's whole foreign policy with its vital commitments in the rich, oil-stocked Netherlands East Indies.

Informed quarters said Patijn was trying out the conference idea with a view toward making the meetings a regular event. They denied any connection with current political developments.

Daladier and Bonnet Apprehensive Over Meeting With Chamberlain

Fear Is Indicated That British May Ask French To Agree To Program That May Not Be Readily Acceptable.

By PERTINAX.
(Copyright, 1935, for The Constitution
and North American Newspaper
Alliance, Inc.)

PARIS, April 27.—(By Wireless)—Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet left for London today rather apprehensive lest Prime Minister Chamberlain and Lord Halifax, the British foreign secretary, should urge them to agree to diplomatic moves of which they do not approve.

The position which the British ministers will take tomorrow in the Anglo-French conference has not been fully disclosed as yet on very important points. For instance, some indications are available to the effect that the British prime minister will express the view that negotiations which have dragged for years with Germany for conclusion of a western pact and resumption of normal exchanges of goods and services ought to be begun afresh.

Believe Plan Futile.
Daladier and Bonnet are convinced that such an attempt would be found to prove futile and mischievous. Futile, because the western powers could not agree today any more than before to give Hitler a free hand in central-eastern Europe and that, short of that concession, the German Fuehrer would not put up with a revival of the Locarno pact under any form whatever. Mischievous, because meanwhile the Czechoslovak government could not help but feel disconcerted and disturbed.

At the same time, the French representatives probably would indorse the idea of negotiations intended only to induce Germany to share in the promises already given by Italy concerning the withdrawal from Spain of volunteers and war materials under the Anglo-Italian agreement of April 16.

Attitude on Spain.
As to Spain, the French attitude will be as follows: The Anglo-Italian agreement does not clearly state whether de jure recognition of the Italian empire by Great Britain is to be made conditional upon actual withdrawal of volunteers and war materials or merely upon final adoption by the London non-intervention committee of the British plan which deals with that subject. Daladier and Bonnet will certainly do their best

CZECH ANSCHLUSS TERMED CERTAIN

Nazi Says France Must Understand Union Will Safeguard World's Peace.

BERLIN, April 27.—(P)—A German official of cabinet rank told the Associated Press today that "Anschluss" (union) of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten Germans with Germany "is inevitable and the only question is whether it can be done without shedding blood."

"Before long the Sudeten Germans will raise a demand for union with Germany," this official said.

He asserted that one of the chief concerns of German diplomacy was how to make France understand she would be violating no agreement if she decided to come to Czechoslovakia's aid at that time. He said:

"If the French can be made to understand that peace in Europe can and will be safeguarded, if only they will understand that people of the same blood and language have the right to form one reich, another great step forward toward the pacification of Europe will have been taken."

At almost the same time these words were uttered the press announced that Hans Krebs, formerly of Jigau, Czechoslovakia, had been given the rank of gauleiter, or district leader. Krebs was given no gaur, or province, to administer.
The German deduction is that his job is one that does not exist at the moment but will soon present itself—that of gauleiter for the Sudetic German region.

WIFE IS SHOT DOWN BY ESTRANGED MATE

March 6, would be heard in superior court May 9.

Friend Telephones.
The friend then telephoned another woman friend, telling her to meet them on a corner of Hunter and Pryor streets. The two women then left the building, going down the stairway on the Hunter street side.

Metwilde had left the law offices, located down the hallway about 50 feet from the head of the stairway, and had gone to work at a desk several feet from the head of the stairs.

He said he was startled by raised voices on the stairway.
"From where I was," he said,
"I could see just the upper portions of Mrs. Coggins and her husband. They were about halfway up the steps, talking excitedly."

"Please Don't Shoot."
Hall told police he heard Mrs.
Coggins say, "Put up that pistol, Bill. Don't be a fool," and that she repeated, several times, "Don't shoot me, Bill. Please don't shoot."

"Then a shot was fired, and I ducked into a near-by office," continued Hall. "I heard five more shots in rapid succession."
Giles, seated at his desk in the office, also heard the shots. He hurried to the front door, reaching it at the same time as Mrs. Coggins.
She fell into his arms, staining his right shirt sleeve with blood, just as he opened the door.

"Bob, I'm shot," she gasped.
Giles said blood streamed from a wound over her left eye and from wounds in the left arm and right hand. He told police he used Mrs. Coggins on the floor of the office and sent for a drink of water and then called police and an ambulance.

Taken to Hospital.
Mrs. Coggins was then taken to the hospital. Meanwhile, police said, Coggins had fled in the crowd of persons outside the building.

John Campbell, operator of a restaurant under the law offices, said he had just delivered soft drinks in the neighborhood and that he saw "a man running away from the door with a pistol in his hand."

Mrs. Coggins was wounded twice in the left arm, once in the right arm and once in the rear of the head. Doctors said the latter bullet struck a glancing blow, curving around her skull and emerg-

Police found three other bullets in the hallway. One had struck the ceiling, another near an office door, and another near the middle of the stairway.

Sought Reconciliation.
They also learned Coggins had sought reconciliation with his estranged wife, and that he allegedly struck her on several occasions. They quoted Mrs. Coggins as saying, "I couldn't possibly live with him."

Mrs. Coggins formerly worked at Grady hospital and is now employed in a Whitehall street dress shop as a salesgirl. For a brief time, she worked as Giles' secretary. Her maiden name was Lucille Yancey. She was married to Coggins November 24, 1933.

Mrs. Coggins was first married to Richard Davis at the age of 17, according to her mother, Mrs. M.
H. Yancey, of 509 Oakland avenue, S. E.

"May-December" Affair.
The marriage, the mother continued, was a "May-December" affair, Davis being 20 years his wife's senior. Mrs. Coggins was divorced from Davis on nonsupport charges.

The mother also said that about two weeks ago Coggins was preparing to leave for Florida and called his wife, from whom he was separated, to "come by his house and say goodbye to him."

Mrs. Coggins complied with the request, going to Coggins' home with a young woman friend.
When the two women decided to leave, Coggins said he would ride a part of the way with them, and got into the automobile.

Cut by Husband.
When they had gone a short distance, Mrs. Yancey said, Coggins drew a razor and tried to cut his

U. S. SPENDING STIRS CRITICISM BY GEORGE

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 27.—(P)
Senator Walter F. George today charged "loose government spending" has thrown the government machine in direct competition with business."

"It is destroying the very thing that would make it good—free American enterprise," Georgia's senior United States senator told the Augusta Kiwanis Club here.

He said distressing economic conditions had led to the "most gigantic and prolonged spending of public money we have ever known," and added that now
"there is a recurrence of the conditions that set on foot that first program."

Coming from a program at Millen, at which James A. Farley, postmaster general, was principal speaker, George said "I don't criticize the President for this situation."

George assailed the undistributed profits tax levy, saying it should and would be eliminated from pending tax legislation.

JUDGE A. B. ANDERSON DIES.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 27.—(P)
Albert B. Anderson, for 27 years a federal judge in the Indiana district court and the circuit court of appeals at Chicago, died here today. He was 81 years old.

CAUSE FOR OPTIMISM

The proffer, by 16 of the leading businessmen of the nation, of their fullest co-operation with President Roosevelt for the restoration of normal business conditions and prevention of future depressions, holds greater promise than any other single suggestion in the long fight against economic stagnation.

When business and government, in friendly partnership, each understanding the other and each seeking the greater good for the greater number, tackle economic problems, the solution of those problems has actually begun. For that new basis of understanding automatically removes from the national consciousness the greatest of all causes for business stagnation, fear of what government may do.

It is significant that the group of 16, in their joint statement, urged avoidance of all legislation "based upon untried social and economic theories." If that suggestion is followed out, in full, a serious disturbing factor in the life of the nation will have been checked.

President Roosevelt, early in his first term in the White House, frankly stated that much of his program to restore prosperity to the nation was experimental in nature. He conceded the probability that some steps taken might, in actual experience, prove to be mistakes and promised he would be the first to acknowledge such a mistake and withdraw from the path of error.

It is generally admitted today that the administration has been, in some respects, too responsive to economic and social experimenters, theorists who have pleaded for opportunity to put their dreams into practice.

The day for theorists is gone. Many of their pet schemes have proven costly in operation. They should be eliminated, forgotten. And the nation should start out once more upon a program demonstrated by the years to be sound business.

Business as a whole, speaking through the sixteen, is ready, willing and anxious to do its full share in pulling the nation up the long hill back to widespread prosperity.

President Roosevelt has asked for that co-operation and now it is his for the taking. The only thing to be avoided is any further experimentation with "untried social and economic theories."

The nation as a whole can only win its way back into the economic sunshine through unselfish hard work by everyone. Industrialists and workers, employers and employees, capital and labor, must push, shoulder to shoulder. Selfishness must be eliminated and every individual unit in this nation must realize that, whether his post in the social fabric be prominent or humble, his basic job today is to work for the ultimate greatest good of all.

With business and governmental leaders working together for the common good—with such co-operation the keynote of the day all through the ranks—the outcome is assured.

That outcome is a greater security, a greater share in life's blessings and a greater knowledge of the joy of life for everyone.

FOR BETTER SERVICE

None of the professions has greater need of, or has tried more conscientiously to uphold, a rigid code of ethics among its members than the lawyers. And no part of the code has been more closely adhered to than the stipulations against all forms of personal advertising. This does not, however, forbid advertising by the bar association for the mutual benefit of its members.

Because of its every day influence upon the lives of the people, the law has thrust the practitioner into a position of intimacy and trust, unknown by members of most other professions. He is frequently entrusted with information of the most valuable and confidential nature, which, if improperly used, could often inure more to his own benefit than to the benefit of his client. Rigid rules of morals and practice are, therefore, absolutely essential.

But avoiding the lawyer until trouble is actually at hand has become, for some inexplicable reason, almost a trait of human nature. This habit, of course, is entirely at variance with wisdom. The majority of lawyers never enter the court room at all. It is not necessary. The time is more profitably employed at the office, and to the mutual advantage of all concerned, in counseling clients, in advance, against the pitfalls of business mistakes and errors of judgment.

The practice of retiring to the four walls of his office, however, has not infrequently wrapped the lawyer in obscurity save only to a few. This is entirely at odds with his position and importance to the people of the community. And it has tended to drive prospective clients into quick, unwise decisions, or into the hands of those less qualified to dispense legal advice.

It was for this very reason, among others, that the Atlanta Bar Association decided upon a wise program of group advertising. Bringing the lawyer and his client together before, and not after, the mistake has been made, will reduce litigation. It will save the people money, cut the cost of administering the law and, in the long run, increase the lawyer's usefulness and improve his position in the community.

MINORITIES IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

With the Sudeten Germans demanding greater autonomy in Czechoslovakia, even threatening secession, and with Hungarian agitation for dismemberment of the World War-created republic, the general problem of minorities in this Central European nation again forges to the forefront.

It is usual in some quarters to refer to Czechoslovakia as an artificial creation brought into temporary being by well meaning but ignorant peacemakers. It is scorned for its ridiculous shape and its many languages; alleged tyranny of a minority of Czechs over the other nationalities is said, by implication, to cry out for German, Hungarian and Polish intervention.

Czechoslovakia, in fact, consists of two ex-Austrian provinces of Bohemia and Moravia to the north and west and the two ex-Hungarian provinces of Slovakia and Ruthenia to the south and east. The country contains about 15,000,000 inhabitants, of whom nearly 10,000,000 are Czechoslovaks, and nearly 5,000,000 people speaking other languages. It is sometimes claimed that the Slovaks are as different from the Czechs and as discontented as the rest of the inhabitants.

While the relations between the Czechs and the Slovaks have not always been easy, it must be remembered these people were separated for something like 1,000 years, from the disintegration of the ancient kingdom of Moravia until the settlement of 1919. In that tremendous interval they were subjected to widely differing influences. The Czech population lived under the more western and liberal administration of Austria and the Slovaks under the more oriental Hungarian yoke. The union therefore brought together about 7,000,000 Czechs, mostly rationalistic and highly developed politically and industrially, and some 2,500,000 Slovaks, consisting in the main of primitive peasantry. Their languages, however, are as similar as the English of Great Britain and the English of the United States. The majority of Slovaks do not join in the governmental opposition. This is largely centered in the Catholic Clerical Autonomists party which, however, represents but 30 per cent of the Slovakian electorate.

In southern Slovakia reside some 700,000 Hungarians, in which section it is easier to justify revisionist agitation. Even the late philosopher-president, Thomas Masaryk, believed in rectification of that border, but only in so far as it concerned the Magyar provinces. One major focal point for trouble in this district centers about the resentment of the few big Hungarian landowners whose property was claimed for redistribution under Czechoslovakia's agrarian reform law. They received some compensation, though, and the policy followed under that law allowed the Czechs to become self-sufficient in essential foodstuffs, where in the early days of the republic much had to be imported in the face of stagnant foreign trade.

The Sudeten Germans, led by Henlein, do not represent a 100 per cent front of the German peoples. Other groups, after many years of passive resistance to the Czech government, in recent years have been co-operating for the building of the republic and are bitterly opposed to the demands promulgated by Henlein as the unacknowledged mouthpiece for Hitler. It was natural, following the World War and the formation of the republic, that the Germans, having held a privileged position, should suffer in some measure, since the Czech people were determined to evict usurpers and destroy privilege. The immemorial attitude of the German, however, has been that he is above laws of other lands. This attitude has reached its full flower in the Nazi regime. Egalitarian principles, combined with human greed and the inevitable suspicion of the non-Slav population, caused these Germans to lose jobs and land, particularly in the formation of the new civil service. Since that time, however, liberal minority laws have been promulgated, without pressure, which have in general restored full rights to the Germanic peoples of the nation.

Today, however, any trace of progress has been wiped out in the eastward ambition of the Nazi followers, which has served to agitate each minority question for ulterior gain. It no longer is a question of building a republic in Central Europe, but a matter of submission to minority demands, tantamount to dismemberment, or a resort to arms.

THE ARMY'S NEW RIFLE
(From the Columbia State.)

Modernization of American infantry is no item more important than in the replacement of the Springfield rifle with the new "semi-automatic" rifle, having two and a half times its firepower, and otherwise as much an improvement upon the 1903 model Springfield as that was over the Krag-Jorgensen.

All the troops at the infantry school will be provided with the semi-automatic rifle by the end of this year, the second division is now being equipped with it, and the 7,500 now in production will suffice to complete the complement for the second division and begin the equipment of the first division.

The new rifle is gas-operated, air-cooled, carries clips of eight cartridges each and weighs nine pounds. The soldier is relieved of the labor of pulling back and pushing home the bolt,

THE CAPITAL PARADE FAIR ENOUGH

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

POLITICAL COMEDY WASHINGTON, April 27.—The two men who really made the compromise on the tax bill never entered the stuffy capitol chamber where the senate and house conferees did the official wrangling. They could not for they were not members of congress. And their names were not for they were not members of congress. And their names were not for they were not members of congress.

There can be no question that the President supervised the horse trading of his side. Representative Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina, the tough old chairman of the house ways and means committee, did the talking. But the words he spoke were the words of the President. On more than one occasion during the conferees he openly telephoned to the White House to get his next cue straight.

The senate's chief, Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, did not actually telephone Mr. Baruch in doubt. Indeed, he may never have received direct advice from his great and good friend, although cynics will wonder whether even Mr. Baruch had enough will power to keep his fingers out of such an exciting pie. But the course followed by Senator Harrison was a course laid out by Mr. Baruch.

OLD FRIENDS MUST PART

The President and Mr. Baruch have been cronies for a great many years, and very likely they will become cronies again. The elder statesman and financial magnate of the Democracy parted company with his chief of staff on tax revision. As has been pointed out here before, he and Senator Harrison and Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, carefully concerted the senate attack on the administration tax bill.

When the bill got to conference, the essential difference between the senate, or Baruch conferees, and the house, or presidential conferees, concerned the preservation of the "principle" of the undistributed profits tax. The senate had voted outright repeal, and at that point Senator Harrison swore by all his gods that nothing less than outright repeal would content him. Indeed, during the preliminary conferees, he made a great show of determination, more than once clapping his hat on his head, and telling his followers: "Get your hats, boys, it's all over."

That the senator's firmness would slowly weaken to the sharp bargaining point might have been predicted from the start. In the first place, Pat Harrison, who is one of the smartest men in the senate, like dexterous log-rolling, never believes in a federal agency, and in the second, his friend, Mr. Baruch, had not spoken for outright repeal. In his famous statement, Day before the senate committee on unemployment, he advocated no more than radical modification.

OUT WITH ITS GIZZARD

The opinion is that, in the end, Senator Harrison won. The President's face was saved. The "principle" of his precious undistributed profits tax was "preserved" for two more years. But Senator Harrison succeeded in writing into the law that the tax would lapse in another 24 months; got his own way with the capital gains tax, and saved all the little pork barrel amendments the senate had tacked on the measure.

The fact is that, although the presidential face was saved, the gizzard of his tax program was sliced out. And, by insisting on the face-saving, the President has given the businessmen another stick to beat him with.

After the President's letter attacking the senate tax bill, Mr. Baruch was on the hill. He was asked his opinion of the presidential suggestions to the tax conferees. He is understood to have replied that, to help business, revision must be "ungrading," and that signs of pique at the White House would nullify the good effects. It can be imagined how much more forcefully the same thought will be put by less kindly fellows.

MOURNING TREASURY

At the Treasury, the leading thinkers on tax matters are definitely depressed by the compromise. Undersecretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill has said that the face-saving on the undistributed profits tax was scarcely worth the surrender on the capital gains tax, the pork barrel amendments, and other points. Treasury General Counsel Herman Oliphant, father of the undistributed profits tax, would have preferred a free sacrifice of his child on the capital gains tax altar.

Altogether, the tax fight has been as neat a political comedy as you could imagine. Everyone has saved his face—the President, the businessmen, the senators, the representatives, the Treasury. No one has got quite what he wanted, and the President less than anyone else. The only people who have been left completely out in the cold are the tax experts—the men who think they really know about taxation. Political necessities have caused them to be completely ignored.

Surgical Error.

It does seem that, in giving credit for surgical "firsts" there is a determined conspiracy against the south. You all know, of course, that it is a daily occurrence for young men or women to call at this office on the general mission of "hunting a job." Some think they'd like to try their hands at newspaper work and others are just seeking encouragement and advice in a general sort of way.

Afraid there isn't much encouragement to be found here. But we do the best we can.

So many of these hopeful seekers after remunerative employment, however, seem to think all they need to make them valuable to prospective employers is a willingness to work. That's good, of course, but in this day of specialization, every one should seek training in some specific job. So they have something tangible to sell in the labor market. So they can get a general sort of work, something better than menial folks.

No matter how humble the work they have opportunity to learn, specialize on that particular work at first. And, to the ambitious, opportunity and time to learn a more advanced occupation will come.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Monday, April 28, 1913:

"Unable to hold a joint meeting in the church because of their irreconcilable growth in attendance, the First Christian and the Second Baptist Sunday schools will adjourn next Sunday morning to the city auditorium for their big mass meeting."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Saturday, April 28, 1888:

"The Conyers Weekly has discovered that rats immediately disappear from the house as soon as a young lady begins taking lessons on the piano."

Learn How To Do Something.

There is striking, even though negative, proof of the need for training in some particular line of work by all who seek employment, in some of the statistics gathered for Georgia during the national census of the unemployed.

In that census 71,523 men in this state registered themselves as "totally unemployed." Only 15.1 per cent of these were classified as skilled workers. The other classifications include 20.5 per cent semi-skilled workers; 26.3 per cent farm laborers and 18.4 per cent "other laborers," classed as totally unskilled.

A large percentage, of those under 25 years of age, are listed as "new workers," that is, persons striving for their first jobs.

THE CAPITAL PARADE FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Raw Politics TAMPA, Fla., April 27.—The politicians of the WPA have just got away with something in Tampa which is so raw that if it were not a matter of record you might not believe it could happen even in the United States.

A WPA employee served as foreman of a local grand jury which indicted nine politicians, all city and county officials, in connection with the traditional spring anti-gambling crusade. He was promptly fired from his WPA job on the ground of "no dough." He smelled rat and reported his disposal to the grand jury immediately. Within two hours the head of the local WPA office reinstated him without explaining where he had suddenly raised the money for a salary which had been lopped off so short a time before.

The local court thought this looked like political intimidation of a grand jury after it had been dismissed, so the new grand jury began an investigation. There is a WPA man on the new grand jury, too, and it might cramp a grand juror's style to reflect that a member of a previous grand jury had lost his WPA job after bringing in indictments against politicians.

The new grand jury summoned R. J. Dill, the state administrator of the WPA, and he refused to discuss the case on the grounds that a state agency has no right to investigate a federal agency. He cited a letter from Harry Hopkins authorizing sub-chiefs of the WPA to release ballyhoo without restriction, but forbidding them to testify in regard to matters of an official or confidential character. The WPA protects its secrets. If it should accumulate felonious secrets it can protect them, too.

Mr. Dill was cited before the local court and the local United States attorney won a decision for him based on federal statutes and decisions of the federal supreme court.

Protection

So now grand jury men have no protection from the political machine which represents the New Deal in Florida. If a grand juror is indicted for a felony, he is engaged in any line of business which is controlled or touched by any federal agency the politicians of that federal agency can ruin him. If he even works for a firm which is beholden to a federal agency for favors or for its fundamental rights his boss may be forced to fire him or take the consequences.

The moral effect of this decision on future grand juries in cases involving politicians or their friends need not be speculated upon.

In this case one of those indicted is J. R. McLeod, the sheriff, who formerly had charge of the WPA in Tampa. He succeeded Dill, the present state boss, when Dill was promoted to his new powers and immunities. Later on McLeod was appointed sheriff, and now a WPA man has the gall to indict him.

The victim is Carl Thoner, a former newspaper photographer. Thoner's job is to take pictures of WPA projects. He is not strong physically and naturally is much upset because now he is doubly guilty of lese majeste. He not only indicted nine politicians but blew the whistle on the local WPA boss when he was fired. Thoner didn't know he was doing wrong. He just figured a grand juror was supposed to do his duty and never thought of the possibility that a man could be "canned" for that. There are still some citizens as naive as that.

How the Case Now, under the court's ruling he can be fired again. This time for good. The local court can do nothing to protect him or punish anyone.

Thoner was fired by J. D. Brothie, the present local WPA boss, who supposedly acted on instructions from Dill, phoned from Miami. About the time of the telephone call Dill was conferring with the indicted Sheriff McLeod, his old colleague in the WPA, but within two hours, as the smell began to spread over Florida, Thoner was reinstated.

The new grand jury and the court naturally wanted to know what Dill said to McLeod and what he said to Thoner. The question of reinstatement of Thoner's dismissal and reinstatement. Dill said it was none of their business. The WPA in Washington wired the grand jury that, inasmuch as Thoner was reinstated the case wasn't worth bothering about. That wire ignored the question of intimidation of a grand jury.

The Florida WPA belongs to Senator Claude Pepper, a candidate for re-election, whom Jimmy Roosevelt, the selfless secretary with the passion for anonymity, recently blessed for re-election with the indorsement of the New Deal.

Senator Pepper hasn't said a word about the case. It's in the bag. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

If He Perversely Refuses to Believe, the Next Step Is to Hit Him

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Since the first tribal chief assembled his spear-armed followers to raid and ravish the land of a neighbor, nearly all wars have been fought for loot.

A few have been wars for liberty or rescue; but even these, in some instances, were caused by taxes or restrictions on business. The others, regardless of the fine slogans used to inspire the cannon fodder, were wars for territory or markets or some economic or political prize.

That explains the individual soldier's proverbial freedom from hate. The orators back home and his leaders in the field urged him to hate the enemy, but any artificial malice that poisoned his heart in the beginning was soon dispelled by the realization that enemy soldiers were helpless tools of power like himself.

The people safe at home were bitter, especially after the casualty lists began to come in; and their hate was encouraged by atrocity stories to keep the "loyal to the cause."

But private soldiers fraternized with the enemy when they dared. They did the killing, but they usually had the uneasy feeling that it wasn't their war. Soon or late they asked one another: "What are we fighting for?" Even in our own bitter struggle, "Yank" and "Reb" were friendly nicknames at the battlefield.

The only wars in which men killed in malice and found cruel pleasure in killing were religious wars—the wars that had no cause but an idea.

Conflict of ideas seems to arouse more rage than conflict of rights; and the more ethereal and theoretical the idea, and the less evidence it has to support it, the greater wrath is aroused by opposing it.

Question the sanity of a man's scientific beliefs and he will calmly prove them right; question his religious beliefs and his inability to give concrete proof will make him hate you.

Trying to make another person see or accept an idea is exasperating work. He seems so perversely stupid. Even parents lose patience and temper when they try to make their child understand a school lesson.

Now the whole world is on the verge of a religious war, for the "ideologies" that cause man to hate man are new religions that inspire religious frenzies. It is war between ideas, and therefore a war of hate and cruelty and heartless lust for blood.

If we take sides to "save democracy," we need not expect to see or feel mercy again until the world is exhausted. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Marriage and hanging go by destiny; matches are made in heaven."

If marriages are made in heaven, then the division of the Methodist church was ordained on high. For if Bishop Andrew hadn't taken unto himself a second wife in 1844, and she a widow, the great schism in Methodism might never have occurred, and the 20,000 Southern Methodists assembling in Birmingham this week in general conference might have no great question of unification to make their deliberations destiny-laden and dramatic. James Osgood Andrews was 50 years old when he married his second wife, Mrs. Leonora Greenwood. He had grown up in the country schools of Georgia. He had been minister to Georgia and Carolina congregations for 20 years. For 12 years he had been a bishop of the then undivided Methodist Episcopal church. He was a happy, successful and consecrated churchman when he came to New York a few months after his marriage to attend the general conference of his church.

But the lady whom he had just married owned a number of negro slaves. They had been left her by her departed first husband. And that was what started the whole trouble. Bishop Andrew considered it unbecoming for a man of God to own other men. Immediately after his marriage he had executed legal papers renouncing all personal property rights in his wife's slaves. But so bitter was the anti-slavery sentiment in the north, and so intense was the feeling of the northern delegates at the conference against a bishop's owning slaves or even being the husband of a wife who owned them, that the matter became a major issue before the conference. A resolution was introduced calling upon Bishop Andrew to desist from the exercise of his episcopal authority until his connection with the ownership of slaves should cease. The bishop offered to resign but the other delegates from the south refused to let him do so. Admitting slavery to be an evil, they held that the church in the south must nevertheless adapt itself to existing conditions and go on preaching to slave-owners and slaves alike, after the manner of St. Paul in the Epistle to Philemon. So the vote on the resolution was taken and when the count was made there were 110 delegates for it and 68 against. The south had been defeated.

It was as a result of this resolution that a "Plan of Separation" was drawn up and the slave-holding states were organized into a separate, self-governing "Methodist Episcopal Church, South." Organization was completed at Louisville in May, 1845, with Bishop Andrew and Bishop Joshua Soule presiding. These two were subsequently recognized as the first bishops of the Southern church. Bishop Andrew remained in office until May, 1866, when he retired. He died in Mobile in 1871 at the home of his daughter, the wife of Rev. J. W. Rush.

In view of the ecclesiastically disastrous second marriage of Bishop Andrew, resulting as it did in the division of the great Methodist Episcopal church, some people may find it hard to believe that he took unto himself later on still another wife, and she, too, a widow. After his second wife died in 1854, the bishop married Mrs. Emily Sims. Children.

Those of us in the south who are not members of the Methodist church have no right to suggest what those members ought to do now about the proposed reunion of the Northern and Southern churches. But we have a right to watch and to pray. The Methodist faith and establishment mean too much to this region to let any of us remain unconcerned as the general conference approaches its great decision at Birmingham. Religion is a moving force in the south, more so than in any other part of the country. It is important that we be permitted to worship God in our own way. It is equally important that the way we choose be one which serves most widely and well the cause of God.

Talmudic Tales

By DAVID MORANTZ.

(Based upon the ancient legends and philosophy found in the Talmud and folklore of the Jewish people. From time to time David Morantz will also answer in this column questions he has been asked on Jewish customs, vocations, monies, institutions, etcetera of the Jews.)

QUESTIONS I'VE BEEN ASKED.

Is it true that the Jewish groom places the wedding ring on the index finger of the bride's right hand? If so, why?

Yes, it is a custom for the groom to place the ring on the forefinger of the bride's right hand. One reason given for this is that the forefinger (index finger) of the right hand is very conspicuous and enables all to see easily that she is now legally married.

I understand that the author of "Why I Am a Jew" is a non-Jew. Is this true?

McGill in Vienna

Orgy of Adulation Accorded Hitler, the 'Build-Up' of Herr Goebbels Described in Dramatic Detail by Writer.

By RALPH MCGILL.

VIENNA, Austria.—(By Mail).—It was early the morning of April 9 that the sound of a band and of marching feet awakened me in a room at the Osterreichshof hotel on the Rotenturmstrasse, in the center of Vienna.

It was the start of the big show, the plebiscite, beloved by the Nazi government, which would show to a world that the people of Austria almost were unanimously in support and approval of the coup which had wiped out the Austrian republic and opened the way for the German dictator to move on toward Bagdad.

Out on the streets it was cold. A swirling snow came out of the west and fitful clouds covered most of the skies. The sun came through only now and then and the snow stopped only now and then.

But Vienna was not fitful. There was a growing hysteria. The city looked like, and was, an occupied city. Armored cars dashed about. Lorries filled with steel helmeted soldiers hurried about. Troops marched. The streets filled.

The city was decorated to appear almost like an oriental scene. German artists had appeared days before and had erected great pylons along the Ringstrasse and most of the route through which the Fuehrer would pass. The orders were that every home, building and window should have some decoration. They had them. There was a riot of the German flags with the "hakenkreuz" or hooked cross. There were millions of pictures of Der Fuehrer on billboards, in windows, on walls.

"JA" SIGNS BLINK EVEN FROM HILLS

Propaganda screamed from every place where it was possible to place a placard. The night before I had seen the many electrically lit "Ja" signs blinking from the hills and from the taller buildings.

And now, at 10 o'clock, it began to fall from the hills. Airplanes appeared and the snow-filled skies were burdened further with millions of sheets of paper carrying only one word, "Ja."

The voting was to be either "Ja" or "Nein" and, as it developed later, only the stout of heart voted "Nein." The legitimate "Ja" votes were in the majority. No one can doubt that. But many a voter was to go to the polls the next day with his mind made up to vote "Nein" and yet mark a cross through the circle opposite "Ja." That, however, was the next day. This was the big show, the thing the German people love.

The Hitler "Jugend," formed and led by German youths imported from Germany, were marching. They wore white shirts and the leather shorts of the Tyroleans. They looked cold, those boys, and they were cold. But they marched and they shouted their songs and they were in a fanatical mood early that day. There were thousands of soldiers and police.

I walked on through the gathering throngs toward the West station where the Fuehrer was to arrive. It was slow going. Thousands already were lining the streets of the route. The spaces near the station were jammed with thousands more. Great towers of propaganda reared their lettered sides, clamoring:

"Ein Volk, Ein Reich, Ein Fuehrer."

"One people, one Reich, one leader"—that is the theme song that every paper preached, that thousands, perhaps millions, of propaganda sheets had announced, that colored lights had spelled out, that loudspeakers blared.

LOUDSPEAKERS COME INTO OWN

The loudspeakers were active already. The Viennese, used to the sound of violins and of singing, were learning the use of the loudspeakers, those metal cones which the Nazi government had erected so that the people of Vienna might hear the voice of the great men and little men who preach their doctrines. They were

Michael Selwyn Dies in New York

Was Credited With 'Discovering' Charlie Chaplin.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—Michael Selwyn, 66, member of a distinguished theatrical family and the man credited with "discovering" Charlie Chaplin, died last night in a New Rochelle, N. Y., hospital after a long illness.

He was a former stage manager of Oscar Hammerstein at the old Victoria theater in Times Square, and later was associated with his brothers, Arch and Edgar, in theatrical productions.

It was Selwyn's tip to an early motion picture producer which led to a contract in the movies for Charlie Chaplin, then playing in an act called Karno's "A Night in an English Music Hall," at $60 a week.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

"FARMER" UNDERWOOD.

Jon Dean Steward called from the federal building as I started up the steps at the First Baptist church in Gainesville Tuesday morning, and said, "We eat at the Dixie Hunt at 1 o'clock, or whenever you quit talking." Mr. Steward is clerk of the United States court for the northern district of Georgia, and they were holding court at Gainesville this week.

Mr. Steward called Judge Marvin Underwood over to our table when we got to the hotel, stating that he wanted me to meet one of my "farmer" brethren. I have known Judge Underwood a long time, but I didn't know he was a son of the soil until this week. And you don't know how glad I was to find that this distinguished federal judge loves to fool with a mule.

What could be finer training for a federal jurist than working in the field? I can't think of any better recreation and relaxation. And that explains why the judge looks so much stronger and happier.

"Yes, I bought me a little farm some time ago out near Sandy Springs, and I am trying now to sell my home and move out there. I want to live out there all the time," said Judge Underwood. "I try to raise enough corn to feed my mule and have some to take to mill. I want you to see my mule and chickens and hogs." I ask you again, ain't that fine?

"Judge, I want you to tell him about the time you lost your car," said Mr. Steward. Judge Underwood looked at his watch, remarking, "Look here, Jon Dean, I've got to be back in court at 2 o'clock. You reckon I can tell that story in 10 minutes?"

He did, and to boot it down to the bare facts, it seems that the judge went out to the farm one day, right after the ice storm, to show a sawmill man where to haul some lumber for repairs on a tenant house. He had just bought a new car, and had left the car at the sawmill down by the branch. They walked around over the woods, marking trees, and finally got to the tenant house to settle the question of where to put the lumber, etc., and then they cut across the woods to Judge Underwood's cabin to get his car. (He had been in the habit of leaving his car at the cabin instead of the sawmill.)

"Man," said the judge, "somebody's stolen by new car and I haven't even got any insurance. You run to the sawmill and get your truck while I run down to the road that goes into the highway and let me see if I can tell which way he turned when he drove out. We'll go on to Sandy Springs and report it to the police." Presently the sawmill man drove up in his truck to announce that the judge's new car was right where he left it down at the mill.

WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

What of South America?

NEW YORK.—Nearly every publication of importance dealing with the international scene has of late been bringing us sensational reports of strange goings-on in the sister republics of South America. That a deal of intrigue and plotting is going on in those hot-blooded countries has always been known, but the chief item of interest that can be gathered today from nearly every South American country is that the United States is rapidly being pushed out and is being replaced by Japan, Germany and Italy.

The capitals, Guatemala, Peru, Argentina and Brazil, name but a few, are swarming with agents of these three foreign powers and in nearly every one of the countries to the south of us there are organizations, powerfully organized with newspapers and propaganda bureaus, designed to give America, American products and American individuals a black eye. In other words there is a drive on against Uncle Sam in his own part of the world and in spite of the Monroe Doctrine, under the very nose of the dominant power in the western hemisphere, a gigantic market is being estranged and captured.

In this drive to capture the South American market, Germany and Italy are moving in concert. They have divided that enormous territory, comprising a score of states, into spheres of interest: Germany handles the two or three big states and Italy takes care of the smaller republics. The diplomatic agencies of the two European aggressors, their ambassadors and consuls, are collaborating in the closest possible way. They exchange information, are on the look-out for advantages for each other and complement each other in a perfect way. Their efforts are facilitated by the influx of large numbers of immigrants.

United States Competition.

Of course the Monroe Doctrine does not mention anything about economic penetration by European powers in the South American sphere. It is directed against the colonization or militarization of any state in South America by a European power. All the United States can do in the present invasion of South American countries by European and Oriental products and merchandise and capital is compete. It is not easy to compete with enterprises that are being subsidized and protected by governments, and the result is that American business is being eliminated from the South American market at amazing rate, according to very competent observers on the spot.

Foreseeing that America will wake up one of these days and that Uncle Sam will come to realize that a gang of plum-pickers has installed itself in his own back yard, Germany and Italy are beginning to take military precautions. Arms shipments to South American countries from Europe are taking on fantastic proportions. Boatload upon boatload of the most modern military equipments is being dumped in the republics closest to the Panama Canal.

America is isolationist, wants no truck or trade with Europe's old quarrels. Uncle Sam is going to stay out of every conceivable foreign entanglement.

Nazism Reaches Out.

But Europe is moving up. The octopus of Pan-Germanism, now known as Nazism, is stretching out its tentacles to this hemisphere.

GLASS ADDS VOICE AGAINST MERGER OF CHURCH GROUPS

Racial Question Raised by Denny Declared Not an Issue by Moore.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 27. (AP)—The voice of Carter Glass, Virginia's fiery Democratic senator and publisher, was added today to those opposing union of southern and northern Methodists, a far-reaching church question slated for final showdown in the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, convening here tomorrow.

Meanwhile, the negro question, which split the great body of Methodism in 1844 and later figured in the War Between the States, was brought forward by anti-unificationists.

Glass Takes Side.
Bishop Collins Denny, foe of the plan to merge the south and north Methodists, said Senator Glass wrote him as follows:

"I am writing to assure you that I completely participate in the view presented by you and Bishop Candler concerning the proposed union of the southern and northern Methodist churches."

Other Methodists, in the south and north Methodist Episcopal, and in the Protestant divisions, have approved the merger, which would bring together in "the Methodist church" approximately 8,000,000 members.

Unification will become an official and spirited issue before the 472 delegates to the general conference with the reading of the Episcopal address by Bishop Hoyt M. Dobbs tomorrow at the first general session.

It has been an open secret in church circles for weeks that Bishops Candler and Denny, both retired, would dissent from the address, the first time in church history there has been a disagreement among bishops on the text of the address.

Debate Due Tomorrow.
Actual debate on the plan of union tentatively is scheduled for Friday morning. A two-thirds majority is required for passage, following approval of the required three-fourths of those voting in the annual conferences.

Refusal of the North Mississippi conference to adopt the union plan will be the basis for a legal attack on unification if the conference votes for the merger.

Bishop Denny, of Richmond, Va., cited the racial issue as a primary danger of unification, in an address last night, but Bishop John M. Moore, senior active bishop in the church, took issue with his colleague concerning the negro question, contending it was not an issue in unification.

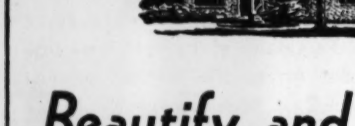

"Race relations are not concerned," he said, "in the plan of union 'southern in origin,' and providing assurance of 'perpetuation of the best southern traditions.'"

Dr. W. P. Few, president of Duke University and chairman of the general board of lay activities, announced "unanimous endorsement" of unification by his group.

The general board is made up of the lay leaders of all the annual conferences.

Dr. Few said two ex-members of the board opposed the plan of union at the group's meeting here today.

Old and New Officers of County Commissioners

tained by counties through homestead and household furniture exemptions.

Causes Controversy.
This measure precipitated the only controversy which developed during the convention sessions, and developed a sharp exchange between Evans and Commissioner Morris W. Tift, of Dougherty county.

Evans presented the resolution from the floor after the resolutions committee had declined to present it with a favorable recommendation.

"We met here to do something definite about how we are going to get the revenue to operate Georgia's counties. It is up to us to do that. We should decide on a program now, and start to elect representatives to the legislature to carry it out. We have made no progress concerning the real objective of this meeting—a solution of our financial situation."

Resents Statement.
T. G. Reeves, of Muscogee county, said Evans "is all wrong when he says we met here simply to get some money. That's up to the legislature. If we tried to tell the people how we wanted to raise money and where to get it, we'd be sticking our necks out to get them clipped off."

Tift arose to resent the statement we have made no progress. I want to ask Mr. Evans to withdraw the remark that we have made no progress, because I am convinced we have made considerable progress."

"I did not mean to cast any aspersions on the board of managers or any officer of this association," Evans added. "I was misunderstood and put in the wrong light. I was talking about the common members of which I am one. They tell us to wait and to cross the bridge when we get to it and not before."

"Rotten Bridge."
"If you know a bridge is rotten, why should you be asked to wait until it breaks beneath you before you try to remedy the situation? They say the legislature got us in this mess, let the legislature get us out. They tell us to sit down and let the legislature run over us and when we are absolutely ruined to blame it on the legislature."

The association voted overwhelmingly to support the resolution.

Three Addresses.
Before ending their sessions, the commissioners heard addresses by Commissioner McCranie, Frank Heyward, state forester, and Columbus Roberts, commissioner of agriculture.

Kimble was presented a beautiful silver water pitcher as a retiring present and members gave him an ovation. Matthews was elected and when his election came up members stood up to applaud.

Tate Wright, clerk of the Clarke County Commission and veteran executive secretary-treasurer, was re-elected by unanimous vote of the board of managers, as was Mrs. Betty Peeler, secretary of the Atlanta headquarters of the organization.

L. L. Brown, Peach county attorney, was elected chairman of the Association County Attorneys of Georgia, an auxiliary of the commissioners' organization, and John J. Bouhan, Chatham attorney, was named vice chairman.

Attorney General M. J. Yeomans and his half a dozen assistant attorneys general were elected honorary members of the attorneys' group. This occurred in closing sessions of Friday's activities.

W. E. Beverly, Thomas county, suggested organization of congressional district groups of the association, similar to one which has operated successfully in the second congressional district for the past year. Quarterly meetings of the district groups are planned.

MEDICAL PROGRESS IS CITED BY ABELL

A. M. A. President-Elect Raps Proponents of Socialization Proposals.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 27.—(AP) Achievements of the American medical profession in the last 50 years should give pause to those who "attempt to take the control of the practice of medicine from it," Dr. Irvin Abell, president-elect of the American Medical Association, said here tonight.

Aiming his talk at proposals for the socialization of medicine, Dr. Abell spoke at a Medical Association of Georgia dinner program at which Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, also was a speaker.

Profession's Record.
"The doctor's opposition to government control of medicine is not entirely self-centered," Dr. Abell said. "I think our past records of service will show that we are vitally concerned with the greatest good for the greatest number of people."

"Today the vast majority of the care of the people of the United States in illness rests on the practitioners of medicine, a burden which they have voluntarily assumed and one they do not propose to relinquish until they are satisfied that some other system will give better medical service to more and more people."

Dr. George H. Semken earlier delivered the Abner Wellborn Calhoun lecture, a feature of the association program, intended to assist surgeons in the treatment of cancer.

"Sometimes I think we are too timid," Dr. Semken said. "When it is the case of a patient who has a cancer and whose chance in an operation is only one in 1,000, why should you not take that chance? Certainly the patient has nothing to lose."

He asserted his belief that surgery is the only final cure for cancer.

Meeting concurrently with the medical association, the Georgia Pharmaceutical Association was addressed by John A. Goode, of Asheville, N. C., chairman of the National Fair Trade Council of the National Association of Retail Druggists.

Goode said a recent survey indicated the advent of fair trade practices had lowered rather than increased drug costs for the "man in the street."

Other Speakers.
Other speakers on fair trade laws were Tom C. Sharp, executive director of the Tennessee Fair Trade Bureau; Roy V. Harris, of Augusta, speaker of the Georgia house of representatives, and George Moulton, of Petersburg, New Hampshire.

Reports were heard from J. E. Bush, of Atlanta, state drug inspector; R. C. Coleman, of Atlanta, member of the State Board of Pharmacy, and W. T. Edmunds, of Georgia Moulton, of Petersburg, New Hampshire.

William Fincher, of Canton, vice president of the association, was elevated to president late today under an established system of advancement. Other officers, nominated from the floor, are to be elected later by mail ballot.

J. W. Brinson, of Wrightsville, retiring president, said Atlanta probably would be designated as the convention city for 1939, since the American Pharmaceutical Association is to hold its sessions there.

Malaria Study.
Reporting to the medical association on the results of an experiment in malaria control by mass treatment, two Georgia doctors concluded today that malaria, a comparatively new chemical compound, was superior to other previously used anti-malarial drugs.

In a joint report, Dr. C. F. Holton, of Savannah, and Dr. M. E. Winchester, of Brunswick, described the experiment conducted last year near Ways, in Bryan county, a low-lying coastal section where malaria is prevalent.

A total of 1,848 persons took the atabrine treatment, the physicians said, and 79 per cent of all types of malarial infection were cured by a five-day course. The cure rate increased to 83 per cent after an additional three-day treatment with plasmoquin, administered in resistant cases.

Several other phases of medicine were touched upon in addresses.

Dr. John W. Turner, of Atlanta, president of the association, said the medical profession was "not a monopoly" and that it was "not a trust."

EDITOR'S WIDOW DIES.
LONDON, April 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Katherine Webster Meekins, widow of Lynn Roby Meekins, former Baltimore editor and author, died yesterday in the home of her son, a commercial attaché in the American embassy.

FRESNO, Cal., April 27.—(AP) If former President Hoover's hat goes into any campaign ring it will not be the gray fedora he wore here.

Hoover's hat was stolen last night while he was signing autographs after his address to the California Council of Republican Women.

The stomach was the seat of cancer more often than any other organ. His paper emphasized the importance of surgery without delay in cases of stomach ulcer which are not readily cured by medical measures.

"The public and the profession always pay a high price for 'last resort' surgery," he said.

"Moderation and common sense in all things is a high ideal," Dr. H. C. Atkinson, of Macon, told the association. "My own two favorite words, which may be set as a goal for this group of patients as well as many others, are moderation and serenity."

"Serenity is a state of mind almost unknown to the majority of patients who develop this type of trouble (angina pectoris)."

FIRE DEPARTMENT SEEKS EQUIPMENT

Board To Ask Council for $37,500 To Buy Aerial Pumps.

Purchase of $37,500 worth of additional fire fighting equipment will be sought by the board of firemasters.

The board voted last night to seek funds to buy a new 100-foot aerial ladder to replace a 28-year-old one now in use, and to purchase two new 1,000-gallon pumps.

Fire Chief O. J. Parker said the city now has two aerial ladders, one a new, automatic 85-foot machine. The other was bought in 1910 and is dangerous to use, he said.

The firemasters will ask the finance committee to place the necessary money in the June finance sheet.

The committee found F. C. Arendell, fireman at No. 12 station house, guilty of having an accident in an automobile after drinking and suspended him for 10 days.

Councilman John Marler, chairman of the firemasters, said the committee voted to change the meeting hour from 7:30 to 8 o'clock during daylight saving time.

SUPPORT IS URGED FOR REED CHANGES

C. F. Palmer Says Public Must Get Behind Plan To Make It Effective.

Public support of changes recommended by Dr. Thomas H. Reed in his survey of Atlanta and Fulton county governments will be necessary in order to make them effective, C. F. Palmer, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday.

Speaking at a meeting of the Atlanta branch of the Military Order of the World War, Palmer traced the history of the movement behind the study of the local situation and said it had been made necessary "because voters failed to vote."

E. G. Hitt was named commander of the organization at the annual election yesterday. Others elected were W. J. Cordes, senior vice commander; Frank A. Stevens, junior vice commander; H. H. Clark, adjutant and treasurer; Robert A. McLarty, judge advocate; Lieutenant Colonel E. N. Schilling, surgeon; Captain Ben C. Hogue, historian, and Reid Elkin, chaplain.

SALVATION ARMY SUPPLIES HOUSE FOR BOYS' CLUB

Washington Street Structure To Be Opened for Youths, 8 to 18.

A home for Atlanta's new club for boys will be provided by the Salvation Army Commissioner Ernest I. Pugmire, southern territorial commander, announced yesterday.

The army board of trustees voted to turn over to the club its roomy building at 314 Washington street, on June 1, to be fitted as a club where boys from 8 to 18 can amuse themselves with games and recreations of every kind.

Atlanta civic leaders plan to open the club early in the summer to provide a place where boys who would ordinarily roam the streets and hang out in pool rooms can come and go as they please.

Praised By Experts.

Dr. Sanford Bates, noted penologist and director of the Boys' Clubs of America, recently praised organization of such a club for the Atlanta boys who have few opportunities. It will prevent much delinquency, he said.

It is estimated the club will have more than 500 members, who will have access to the clubhouse and its facilities at all times under the guidance of a director experienced in juvenile work.

Commissioner Pugmire said the building at 314 Washington street is now used as the women's emergency home. Turning the property over to the Boys' Club of Atlanta, of which Henry C. Heinz is chairman, and Hal F. Hentz is vice chairman, will necessitate a number of changes in the Salvation Army set-up.

To Move College.
The Southern Training College will be moved to a site recently acquired on Stewart avenue, the men's social department, now at Spring and North avenue, will occupy the old training quarters, while the women's emergency home will be moved to the Spring street property.

The Army has agreed to let the Boys' Club use the Washington street building for two years, with the building itself remaining in its control. This building was sought because it already has a large gymnasium and numerous shower baths, in addition to rooms and space to house the 500 prospective members of the club.

Officials of the civic organizations throughout the city which are sponsoring the club approved the building's acceptance.

SHRINE TO PRESENT REVUE SATURDAY

Master of Ceremonies Is

"The Broadway All-Star Revue and Follies," sponsored by the Shriners of Yaarab Temple, will be presented at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night in the municipal auditorium.

Joe Byron, Broadway night club favorite, will serve as master of ceremonies for the 18-act show. Others on the program are: Margy & Ruth, dancers; Dotty Dunn, eccentric dancer; Ginger Harris, acrobatic star; Behney Harris & King, adagio trio; Laval, doing card and cigaret tricks; Howard & O'Friel, waltz team; Fred Swift, musical taxi driver; and Ad and Lib, billed as the men with 140 different voices.

In addition there will be a group of dancing girls from the Winter-Garden's revue.

SUCCESS REPORTED IN VET FUND DRIVE

Workers Report Persons Who Would Not Wear Flag.

Chairman W. L. Van Dyke, of the flag day street sale, staged yesterday by Marcus Beck Post No. 3027, Veterans of Foreign Wars, last night reported a very successful day.

Chairman Van Dyke expressed himself as grateful to those who contributed to the post's fund for the relief of needy veterans and their families.

Five of the many women volunteer workers, who canvassed downtown streets, reported meeting persons who said they refused to wear the American flag "under any circumstances," they reported.

WESTMINSTER'S PULPIT IS FILLED

Rev. Wood, of Mobile, Ac-

The Rev. Ferguson Wood, assistant pastor of the Government Street Presbyterian church, of Mobile, Ala., was reported yesterday to have accepted a call to become pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church here.

Although officials of the Atlanta church said they had not been officially notified of his acceptance, the young minister, who is only 28 years old, is said to have made the announcement in Mobile. He will succeed the Rev. Peter Marshall, who resigned to become pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church in Washington last September.

A graduate of the Union Theological Seminary, in Richmond, Va., he has served in his present charge in Mobile for the past 15 months. He was here for two services on April 24.

F. D. R.'S RADIO USE HELD 'DICTATORIAL'

Publishers' Association Says Press Must Halt Democracy Encroachment.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—

President Roosevelt's use of the radio for "fireside talks" to the nation was cited in a report to the American Newspaper Publishers' Association today as a precedent which, in future years, "might encourage dictatorship."

The report of the committee on radio, which will be brought up for action later by Edwin S. Friendly, of the New York Sun, reviewed what it described as "cumulative evidence as to the potentialities of radio for the destruction of democracy," and said:

"The inescapable task of the American press is to guard against any encroachment upon American democracy by the federal government with radio as an instrument of political power."

Another report submitted for later action expressed concern over the future of "the whole social security program as it is now operating."

Other Spending.

The report, drafted by a committee headed by A. V. Miller, of the New York Herald Tribune, said tremendous sums collected by the government for social security had "actually been spent on current government expenses" and added:

In spite of having spent all these tremendous sums that have been collected for the purposes of social security on every other form of current expense, we have still had tremendous government deficits."

Efforts to settle the long-debated problem of reporting court trials were discussed by Giles J. Patterson, Jacksonville, Fla., attorney, and Paul Bellamy, of the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bellamy said the publishers took the position that "the entire matter of photography in courtrooms should be left to the discretion of the trial judge, who has ample authority under his contempt power to regulate the procedure."

Labor problems were discussed in a report of a special standing committee headed by Eugene Mackinnon and in a speech by James G. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville, Tenn., Banner, and president of the A. N. P. A.

High Wage Rate.

Asserting newspaper wage rates and earnings had remained "consistently high when compared to those of all other business and industry," the report said:

"Early in 1937 newspaper wage rates were moving upward. Increases were granted in conciliation on the expectation of extensive business improvement. The improvement failed to materialize, yet only in the last month or so has the trend in newspaper wage rates leveled off to a position where scales are being renewed at old rates and without increase."

In the face of reductions demanded and put into effect in automobile, steel, textile, shoe and railroad lines it is inevitable, unless business conditions improve, for newspaper employers to expect relief in the matter of wage costs or for scores of employers to find themselves compelled to curtail employment as a means of balancing business losses.

Renewal Hailed.

Stahlman hailed the recent renewal of the international arbitration agreement between the A. N. P. A., and the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America, as "an example of amity and accord," which other employers and employees might emulate with profit.

He recalled a speech he made before the Inland Daily Press Association last fall, in which he said the public was "fed up on weak-kneed, namby-pamby editorial policies."

"They are tired of sloppy editing, canned bunk and pornographic filth," he went on. "They are outraged by the invasion of personal privacy and public decency, in type or in picture; they are sick of that section of the press which has surrendered the ideals of an honorable profession for the tinkle of the cash register and the fleshpots of Egypt."

It costs about 25 per cent more to operate an automobile on gravel road than on high-type hard surface.

FORD AND ROOSEVELT HAVE PLEASANT TALK

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP)—

President Roosevelt and Henry Ford, a leading dissenter to Rooseveltian policy, devoted two hours to a "pleasant family conversation" today and then covered their discussion with a heavy lid of secrecy.

For an hour they talked at a luncheon in the little "family dining room" at the White House and continued the conversation for another hour in the President's study, the oval room upstairs.

Then, with associates elbowing newspapermen aside, the motor magnate left the White House, took his place in a gleaming limousine and drove to Union Station to keep an engagement in New York.

The White House was equally firm about declining to say what the two had talked about. "There will be no statement here, either now or later," said Stephen T. Early, the President's secretary.

But G. Hall Roosevelt, a brother of Mrs. Roosevelt, who was instrumental in arranging the meeting, was one of those present, told the reporters the discussion involved "nothing that smacked of commercialism."

The automobile manufacturer's visit found Mr. Roosevelt deep in the economic problems arising from the business recession, and preparing to send a message to congress on monopoly and the anti-trust laws. Immediately after Ford's departure he went into conference with Attorney General Cummings and other Justice Department officials on that message.

After the conference, Cummings said the monopoly message would contain "recommendations of various types" for strengthening the anti-trust statutes and "a statement of the problem." The conference was attended also by Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson, Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust cases, and Ben Cohen, administration legislative advisor.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Commerce Roper called upon 16 prominent big businessmen, who have offered Mr. Roosevelt their help in working out a system of continuing consultation between government and business, to "work out a concrete program." It was indicated that the 16 might be invited to the White House.

As a wedding gift, Mohammed King Zog promised to build his Catholic bride a Catholic chapel in the palace. He also granted her request that she be permitted to choose her ladies in waiting from among Hungarian friends.

A former tribal chieftain, Zog is the first king of modern Albania, former Turkish territory which declared its independence in 1912.

to Grand Ball May 30.

The drive for a $50,000 clubhouse in Piedmont park was pushed yesterday at a meeting of the building committee of Atlanta American Legion Post No. 1.

The meeting of this committee was the first of daily sessions planned by various groups in the drive. From now until the Legion's grand state military ball May 30, Legion workers will meet daily to discuss plans and carry the campaign into every part of the city and state.

Two past commanders of Atlanta Post No. 1 attended yesterday's meeting, Franklin Chalmers and Eugene Oberdorfer.

Harry Wengrow, commander of the Jewish War Veterans, was in attendance and offered the assistance of his organization in raising funds for the new building.

"We must center our activities on the grand state military ball as the first step toward raising this money," Wengrow said. "State-wide enthusiasm is being shown in the ball, and it is certain we will get a good start toward the necessary amount through the sale of tickets." The ball will be held in the Atlanta auditorium.

CHARLIE B. MOORE BURIED IN MILLEN

Father of Atlanta Oil Man Laid to Rest.

Funeral services for Charlie B. Moore, 89, father of Wiley Moore, Atlanta oil company executive, who died Tuesday night at his home in Millen, Ga., were held here yesterday, with the Rev. T. R. Harvill and the Rev. W. E. Scott officiating. Burial was in Millen.

Mr. Moore, a retired architect and contractor, was a native of Sandersville, but had made his home in Millen for the last several years.

YEOMANS TO PRESENT TAX AGREEMENT TODAY

Attorney General M. J. Yeomans and Marion Smith, chairman of the board of regents, left for Washington yesterday to resume before the United States supreme court the state's legal battle against payment of federal taxes on admissions to college football games.

They will present arguments to the high court today.

Critic Finds Orchestral Fullness In Concert of Tuskegee's Choir

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

The Tuskegee choir, of Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, in their program of negro folk music at the city auditorium last night, did some of the best spiritual singing I have ever heard. This group of 100 negro boys and girls responded to every direction of their capable conductor, William L. Dawson, with true musicianship and an inherent feeling for the songs they sang.

Dawson proved himself a conductor and musician and composer (several of his own compositions were on the program) of remarkable talent.

The choir sang entirely unaccompanied throughout the program. Yet there was an orchestral fullness to their work, and a fine tone balance. One of the finest things on the program was the last encore, the "Hallelujah Chorus," from Handel's "Messiah," which is difficult enough with full support of accompaniment.

The choir's program was for the most part made up of traditional negro spirituals and works by negro composers. The singing of the spirituals excelled. There is a certain tone quality, a certain strain, that only negro singers can embody in the singing of spirituals, and the Tuskegee choir possesses that requisite together with finely developed ensemble, which makes for perfect enjoyment.

Some of the spirituals they sang were "Egypt Land," "Sing Low, Sweet Chariot," "Don't You Tell Me to Do," "Balm in Gilead," and "Couldn't Hear 'Nobody Pray."

They sang two compositions of Cecil Burchell, negro composer, "Go Down Moses," and "Deep River."

One of the highlights of the program was "Listen to the Lambs," by Nathaniel Dett, another negro composer, done with magnificent choral effects. They also sang Dett's "I'll Never Turn Back No More."

Three of Dawson's compositions found favor with the audience, both from the standpoint of their composition and from the standpoint of their excellent performance; "Ain't-a That Good News," "Soon-a Will Be Done," and "Oh, What a Beautiful City." "Oh, Little Jesus," a song by W. L. James, who is a teacher in one of the Atlanta negro schools, won hearty acclaim.

Soloists on the program, each of whom had exceptionally beautiful voices, were Addie Mae Stabler, Rufus Curtis, Otis Wright and Verdell Carnegie.

U. S. FLEET RETURNS TO BASES TODAY

Six-Weeks' War Games End;
55,000 Sailors To Get Shore Leave.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., April 27.—(AP)—The United States fleet will return home tomorrow afternoon from six weeks of secret maneuvers.

Admiral C. C. Bloch, commander-in-chief, wireless naval officials here tonight the 140 warships would return to their normal bases at San Pedro and San Diego tomorrow and that shore leave would be granted the 3,600 officers and 55,000 men.

The 1938 war games were held under the strictest secrecy ever maintained in peace-times by the navy. Eleven lives were lost and three $100,000 sky cruisers and several other smaller fighting planes were forced down in the early stages of the maneuvers.

JURORS TO QUIZ 40, HOLD NIGHT SESSION

Indictment Stage Nears; Session Will Wind Up This Saturday.

The Fulton county grand jury, nearing the indictment stage in its investigation of graft among law enforcement officials, will hear testimony today from approximately 40 witnesses, in a session scheduled to last into the night.

The grand jury, which ends its term Saturday, will convene at 10 o'clock this morning to question several new witnesses and to recall almost a score of witnesses who have appeared before for exhaustive questioning.

Murray Harmon, who has appeared more than half a dozen times before the jury, answered a summons yesterday and was served with a warrant for his arrest. He was indicted Tuesday by the jury on a charge of perjury, after he had testified he never paid a bribe to O. J. Stanley and W. R. (Cap) Joyner, former deputy sheriffs.

Harmon went to Fulton Tower where he made $5,000 bond, signed by Newt Garner, professional bondsman, and W. C. Burton. Meanwhile, another witness who claimed the record for answering grand jury subpoenas during the present probe, Ike Sneed, declared he had no knowledge of payoffs to police or deputies.

ATLANTANS TO ATTEND RITES IN MARYLAND

Three officers representing At-
attend the 164th anniversary celebration of the Fifth Maryland Infantry to be held in Baltimore Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

T. Guy Woolford, commandant of the Old Guard, designated Captain Henry A. Lawrence, Captain W. M. Graham and Lieutenant Carlton Beam as official representatives of the Atlanta military group.

DANVILLE, Va., Executive, 94; Has Served City for 46 Years.

DANVILLE, Va., April 27.—(AP)—Danville paid homage tonight to its most beloved citizen, Captain Harry Wooding, mayor of the city for 46 years and the nation's oldest mayor.

The occasion was the 94th anniversary of his birth and an elaborate celebration was held in the city auditorium, filled to capacity.

Preceding the ceremonies, a parade of military units moved down Main street. In the rear was Mayor Wooding, riding in a car, escorted by an honor guard composed of the entire personnel of Battery "B," 24th Coast Artillery, Virginia national guard.

There was a telegram from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, one of 100 received.

A basket of flowers on the speaker's platform was the tribute of Major J. Fulmer Bright, of Richmond.

An oil painting of the veteran mayor, who saw service in the War Between the States, was unveiled. It will hang in the armory quarters of Battery "B," in which Captain Wooding years ago was an officer.

The 1937-38 appropriation act amounted to $11,805,271, but did not include large appropriations for the welfare department and several other agencies.

WHAT do we mean—"a blend of straight whiskies"?
Just this...

Each of Frankfort's four famous whiskies is ALL whiskey—fine whiskey, every drop—distilled in Maryland and Kentucky, the traditional home of fine American whiskey for over 150 years. But—and this is important—each of these Frankfort whiskies is more than a single fine straight whiskey. Each is a superb combination of several selected American straight whiskies.

Why several? Because we sincerely believe that the best way to achieve a truly great whiskey is to take several fine straight whiskies—each outstanding for some particular quality—and blend them together so as to unite all their noble virtues in one even more magnificent whiskey.

That's why these fine whiskies by Frankfort have such downright glorious flavor, as you'll agree when you try them. And, incidentally, that's the surest way we know for you to find YOUR brand of whiskey—at a price you want to pay!

TALMADGE 'SNUB' LAID TO 'POLITICS'

Objection to Ex-Governor on Memorial Program Assailed by Camp.

By the Associated Press.
An associate of former Governor Talmadge yesterday, blamed "politics" for objections to selection of Talmadge as Memorial Day orator here Tuesday.

Lindley W. Camp, Talmadge's law partner, said Mrs. Forrest Kibler, president of the Atlanta Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and Mrs. E. B. Williams, adjutant of the Tige Anderson Camp of United Confederate Veterans here, "are employees of the state of Georgia under Governor Rivers."

Mrs. Kibler and Mrs. Williams announced their organizations had protested selection of Talmadge, and had refused to attend the memorial exercises.

Not On Pay Roll.
Mrs. Williams said after Camp's statement was published that she "never worked for the state, and have never been on a state pay roll." Advised of this, Camp said he had been informed Mrs. Williams was a state employee, but "if she says she isn't, I certainly accept her word for it just as I would that of any lady, but there is no doubt about Mrs. Kibler's being a state employee."

Mrs. Kibler also denied Camp's charges, saying she had never been on the state pay roll.

Camp's statement said Mrs. Kibler "is employed by the state planning board on appointment of Governor Rivers" and that she "has been making statements regarding the Memorial Day exercises in Atlanta in an effort to discredit Hon. Eugene Talmadge."

"It is nothing but politics and Hon. E. D. Rivers, through his state employees, is trying to play politics with the most sacred memorial service in the south."

Political Activity.
Protests by the two organizations at selection of Talmadge were based, members said, on Talmadge's political activity, and the fact that he told a Lincoln Day audience in Springfield, Ill., in 1936 when he was Governor—that he wished "we had a man like Lincoln in the White House."

Mrs. George Brown, president of the Rebecca Felton Chapter of the U. D. C. in Atlanta, said her chapter took part in the "splendid" memorial program.

She added: "I don't feel we should insult a guest. The ceremony was a patriotic and not a political matter. My father was a major in the War Between the States. I do not believe we should fight that war again."

Chapter in Services.
Mrs. Alexander H. Strickland, president of the Crawford Long Chapter of the U. D. C., also in Atlanta, wrote The Atlanta Constitution that the Crawford Long Chapter did not refuse to participate in the ceremonies.

"The idea of the services and the parade Tuesday was to honor the Confederate veterans and not to honor any particular speaker of the day," she said. "Therefore, there was no occasion for the Crawford Long Chapter, U. D. C., to refuse to participate in the exercises."

She said she had made arrangements for use of a motor car to take part in the Memorial Day parade but that "the owner of the car had illness in her family and plans for our participation in the parade could not be effected."

Greater Understanding.
Talmadge's speech Tuesday advocated greater understanding between north and south and said his "services and sentiments" concerning Confederate veterans "are matters of public record which cannot be successfully misrepresented." He was interrupted several times by applause. The crowd cheered also when he was presented as "one of the really great Governors Georgia has had."

Talmadge announced yesterday he had two speeches scheduled for tomorrow.

"I am going to talk about politics in both," he said, without elaborating. The speeches are at Hillview school near Collins at 11 a. m., and at Tarrytown school, 3 p. m.

FOUR DIE IN CRASH
Foresters Find Wreckage of Private Airplane.

VISALIA, Cal., April 27.—(P)—Joseph E. Elliott, superintendent of the Sequoia national forest, said today a ground crew reached the wreckage of an airplane which vanished with four Visalia residents Monday, and that all were dead.

The ground crew was led to the site on the slope of 8,100-foot Sunday peak by forest rangers who sighted wreckage of the private plane about 40 miles northeast of Bakersfield.

The plane, piloted by Dr. O. N. Lambert, was en route from Death Valley to Visalia when it disappeared in a storm. The others aboard were his wife, Mrs. Carolyn Lambert; her mother, Mrs. Frank Blain, and Miss Dorothy Davis, Dr. Lambert's office nurse.

CALIFORNIAN IS HELD FOR THREAT TO F. D. R.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 27.—(P) United States Commissioner Featherstone announced that a man he described as Keith H. Rapp, 29, of Bakersfield, Cal., was arraigned before him this afternoon on a charge of writing a threatening letter to the President of the United States.

"Rapp was sent to the county jail in default of $10,000 bond," Featherstone said. "I set a hearing on the charge for Saturday morning. The letter was written at Bakersfield."

EARLE REMOVES AIDE IN HOT FIGHT

Candidate Margiotti Is Ousted in Refusal To Back Bribe Charge.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 27.—(P)—Governor George H. Earle threw Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti out of his cabinet today, a climax of another set-to in Pennsylvania's turbulent Democratic primary fight.

Margiotti, self-styled "middle of the road" candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, had charged that legislation was "bought" in Pennsylvania. He named prominent Democrats.

The Governor, state committee endorsed candidate for the United States senate, demanded evidence be given state police, Margiotti insisted on a grand jury investigation.

Letter of Dismissal.
An hour later, Earle, an ardent New Dealer who in 1934 became Pennsylvania's first Democratic Governor in 40 years, wrote his attorney general:

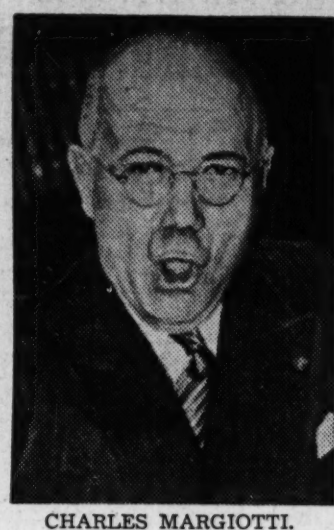

"I hereby remove you as attorney general because you have refused to substantiate . . . the most serious charges you made last night against three of your political opponents. . . ."

Dean Herbert F. Goodrich, of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, was named to succeed Margiotti. He was instructed to "make such arrests and take such action as the evidence submitted warrants."

Governor Earle then dismissed Margiotti's deputies, Norman L. Wyward and Edward Friedman, and his publicity director, Leonard L. Lindgren.

Margiotti received his notice as he was preparing a petition to the Dauphin county (Harrisburg) court asking for the special grand jury.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—The largest group which came to tea yesterday consisted of 450 members of the National League of American Pen Women. They were followed by the wives of the motion picture engineers. In this small group of less than 100, there were representatives from other nations as well as from the United States. A very charming woman was introduced to me as having come from Austria. I asked her how long she had been in this country and she answered, "Just 24 hours." Whereupon I discovered she was here to stay and the tea was the beginning of a new life in a new country!

Then I had the pleasure of a real talk with 21 members of the Dublin (Ga.) Production Credit Association. Mr. W. I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, brought this group in. They have the distinction of having won a competition for the best attendance at a stockholders' meeting—402 out of 406 members being present!

I thought they must come from a part of Georgia where the land is particularly good, but they told me their land is just average and the farmers just average farmers. They use the extension service from the college and their county agent advises them, but this is the ordinary assistance any group of farmers can have. I was forced to conclude that their progress is largely due to a few really good leaders. This proves the important thing in any community is to find someone who will take enough responsibility concerning community affairs to lead the others. If that is done, the whole community will go forward.

Mr. Sherwood Eddy came this morning, heading a group of about 73 people, all of whom seemed very much interested in their journey through a part of the United States. It has become an accepted habit for certain leaders to take groups on European or Far Eastern trips, but it is a more or less new idea to take citizens to visit their own country.

I met with them for half an hour in the blue room and did my best to answer a few of the questions which were asked. But I was conscious of the fact that probably many of the people present could have answered the questions very much better than I did. Miss Hilda Smith, head of workers' education in the educational division of the WPA, came to lunch with me today. I feel so strongly that now is the time to put emphasis on this phase of education. The workers of the country are constantly assuming greater responsibility and it seems very necessary that they should have a real knowledge of history and economics and know something of the labor movement so they may have some perspective on the questions with which they find themselves confronted.

There was a time in this country when certain people felt that the untrained worker was easier to handle and therefore the less the workers were taught the better, but we know now, to solve the economic problems of the day, workers and employers must co-operate. Co-operation with an untrained group is practically impossible and will not lead to an intelligent solution of any problem.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

THE RABIES SCARE.

Every so often the health department works up a rabies scare, not to create a demand for Pasteur treatment or "serum," but mainly to gain publicity for the health department, the health officer or his work, with a shrewd purpose behind it all, namely, to obtain larger appropriations or to prevent a cut in the generous appropriations now being made for the conduct of the manifold activities of the health department.

Some of these activities amount practically to the practice of medicine and come under health department scope only because the politician holding down the job of health officer feels he must identify himself with every possible matter that has the slightest relation to health in order to hold his political position.

A medical colleague who evidently believes in Santa Claus and the stork sends me a newspaper clipping emanating from the health department. The item briefly mentions the death of a man from rabies. With it is another clipping telling of the death of a second man from rabies. Both men, the newspaper item says, had been bitten by a dog that had rabies. The dog had bitten nine persons—all seven of them received Pasteur treatment at once and all are still living and well. These two men did not receive Pasteur treatment. They are dead of rabies.

Could anything be more convincing? My medical friend asks whether these two cases do not cause me to alter my view and opinion as to the cause of hydrophobia (although he is a physician he seems to like the word "hydrophobia"), and its specific treatment. If it does so influence me, the medical colleague suggests, it would seem in order for me to take my readers into my confidence and advise them properly, in case any of them should ever be bitten by a rabid dog.

If I were bitten by a dog presumably suffering with rabies I should by no means take Pasteur treatment. Instead I should want the wound immediately disinfected and dressed by a competent physician, and I should want an immediate injection of anti-tetanus serum, by way of prophylaxis against possible lockjaw infection. Thereafter I should treat the wound as one would any wound of like degree. After a week I'd want a second injection of anti-tetanus serum. Then I'd forget it.

This is the conscientious conviction I have reached after 35 years' study of the rabies question.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Hernia Cured.

Last summer, following your advice, I had ambulant treatment for a hernia of eight years' standing. The doctor allowed me to remove the truss finally in October. No sign of trouble since. Thank you very much. (F. B.)

How about doing the belly breathing exercise to restore tone to the muscles which had become weakened by my "favoring" the hernia all those years? (F. B.)

Answer—Better ask the doctor who treated you. Incidentally, it is almost as pleasant for me to receive such a message as to provide you divulge to me the name of the doctor—as it is for a doctor himself.

Three Times and Through.
Thank you sincerely for your booklet "The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene." At first I was highly skeptical but later I read it over more carefully, and finally a third reading of the first half. Then I began to think—I am forever through with physics. (S. J. B.)

Answer—That's just what ails the average gink, who learns to read but not to think. For a copy of the booklet send 10 cents coin and a three-cent stamped envelope bearing your address. Envelope must be standard size, not less than 3 1/2 by 6 inches.

Psoaritis.
Following your suggestion we began giving our children a daily ration of 3,000 to 6,000 units of vitamin D to supplement their regular diet, prevent rickets and maintain immunity against cri. We are happy to report that both of them now have smooth, clear skins—they were both subject to a dry, cracking scaly state of the skin doctors called psoriasis. (M. S.)

Answer—Physicians are treating severe chronic psoriasis successfully with massive doses of vitamin D, the same treatment as for chronic arthritis. (Copyright, 1936, for The Constitution.)

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

SAVE YOUR SKIN FROM REDUCING WRINKLES.

You are counting on looking simply divine when you lose those 20 excess pounds. And so you will, if you slim down slowly! Reducing can make a new woman of you—or an older one. One of the worst things you can do to your looks is to reduce too fast.

Never forget that skin contraction plays the beauty role in reducing, and that with a considerable amount of excess weight the skin has been unduly stretched. This causes the skin to lose some of its elasticity.

It is the elasticity of the skin that enables it to expand and contract to adapt itself to weight change. If the weight change is gradual enough, the skin contracts beautifully, but when the reduction is made too suddenly there is no time for the skin to contract into a smooth covering and it sags into wrinkles.

Look out for wrinkles!

The most disastrous results of rapid reducing occur when the skin has for years been adapted to excessive overweight. In such cases the weight reduction must be made even more slowly than ordinarily to allow for a greater loss of the skin's elasticity.

When wrinkles follow a reducing program you may be sure that the diet has been too drastic, the reducer has taken too little exercise, and the weight has been taken off too quickly. There are plenty of bad examples of this type of program—usually the firm contours of the figure sag and the chin goes terracing down the throat.

This "reduced look" is as unnecessary as it is unflattering. The longer you have been overweight and the higher your percentage of excess weight, the longer time should be allowed for reduction. Another factor in skin elasticity is your age. As one grows older the elasticity decreases and after middle age a reducing program should be undertaken with caution. Give the skin time to contract.

A slow weight loss gives your skin an even chance, but the smart thing is to exercise and replace some of the subcutaneous fat with well-toned muscle tissue. Exercise has a cosmetic value that is yet to be surpassed by any ointment or lotion. Regular activity tones skin and muscles, improves the circulation and tends to increase the skin elasticity. Exercise is always a beauty measure, but most of all when you are taking off weight.

With more exercise, you may find that your diet is causing you to lose faster than you should. Be sure that your weight loss for the first month does not exceed two pounds per week, for the second month one and one-half pounds per week, and in the third month drop down to one pound per week. Do not stop your exercise, but increase your calorie intake until you have regulated your weight to a speed that is safe. If you will exercise and take your time there is no reason why you cannot lose 20 pounds—or 50 pounds—without a wrinkle.

DO YOU KNOW IF YOU'RE PSYCHIC?

TEST YOUR MIND-READING POWERS.

An old friend whom you have not seen for years calls you up the very minute you're thinking of him.

Another friend suddenly has a clear vision of an accident to a relative who lives far away. Later, she discovers such an accident actually happened at the exact time of her vision.

For years such strange things were charged to coincidence. People scoffed at the idea of telepathy, the ability to read minds. Clairvoyance, seeing events at a distance, was "poppycock."

Lately tests have been made in American universities which show that many people do have these supernatural abilities. You, some of your friends, may be among them! By using the same type of simple tests the psychologists use you can easily find out.

Take six cards from each of the four suits of a deck of cards—24 in all. Best to choose the ace to the six-spot. Now, with a sympathetic friend, a pencil and scoring paper, begin! Set yourself back to back as the picture shows. If you're the sender, signal with a pencil tap as you pick up the first card. Fix your mind on the number of its spots (disregard color and suit), while your friend tries to get your thought.

When he calls what he "sees," write it down on the scoring sheet, then go on to the next card. To be right, on an average, 4 times out of 6, is to be highly psychic.

Are you curious, too, to know if there's any truth in stories of apparitions?

Our 40-page booklet, Telepathy and Clairvoyance Explained, is a fascinating explanation of psychic phenomena. Real-life examples of telepathy, clairvoyance, instructions for other simple tests.

Send 15c for our booklet, TELEPATHY AND CLAIRVOYANCE EXPLAINED, to The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

PLEASANT HOMES

By ELIZABETH M'RAE BOYKIN.

BEDS TO BOAST ABOUT.

The bed with the drapery only at the head is called the style "a la duchesse."

How would you like to make draperies for 400 beds (much less take care of them!) That is the number of beds that Louis XIV is reputed to have had, and most of those beds had six full curtains. Or a fine tapestry at its head. Or a draped tester. Or at least a fancy canopy. Wool fabrics as well as silk, were used for draperies, and fur linings weren't unknown.

No wonder that rooms in which such gorgeous beds presided were as dining and sitting rooms till the late seventeenth century. It was nothing unusual for a lady to receive guests in her bedroom. And it was a custom for the King of France to recline on a ceremonial bed when he presided in parliament or heard petitions.

The fully draped bed was replaced in seventeenth century France to a large extent by the style "a la duchesse" with hangings only at the head. But the completely enclosed bed with curtains all around persisted in England to the middle of the nineteenth century.

But these comparatively modern beds are nothing to the beds of even earlier times. The Greek bed was made of wood with bands of hide in place of slats, then skins of animals spread over the bands. Beds became more elaborate and were sometimes made of solid ivory veneered with tortoise shell or silver. The ancient German bed was made of leaves piled on the floor and covered with skins. The contemporary German custom of sleeping on a feather bed became common in the eighteenth century. The closed bed with sliding or folding shutters was the type used traditionally in Scotland, Brittany and Holland, and you can see it in use even today in those countries. In Holland also we've seen beds built into the wall like a closet and closed off by a door to keep out the night air. Iron beds turned up first in the eighteenth century and were popular because they were freer from insects.

In the Near East it is the custom to pile up rugs and sleep between them without benefit of sheet or blanket. The Japanese sleep on the floor on padded quilts. The Northern Chinese sleep on stone platform beds with furs built under them for warmth. There are also very grand Chinese beds made of carved wood with roofs and sides like a small house.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondents must give their name and address in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield in care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: What on earth is a woman to do when she's tried with all she has to make a peaceful and happy home and gets only a big headache? My husband walls his eyes at me during dinner and soon afterwards puts on his hat and goes out; where, I don't know. Then he comes in and reads until 2 or 3 in the morning. We have two fine boys, 5 and 7, and you would think he would enjoy them but he gives no evidence of it. There's no show of affection for them or me. We don't quarrel because I am silent when he nags, as he frequently does. A pall hangs over our home and there's no fun, no laughter, no real family life as I had it in my parents' home. Do you wonder that I am a brooder with a long face and a heavy heart?

S. M.

Answer: There are several things a wife can do when her marriage disappoints her; any one of which is better than brooding and going around with a long face, though. You must first understand how she's tempted to hang the crepe and mourn for her lost love. The first thing she should do is study her husband to see what ails him; and he is ailing for a normal man naturally enjoys spending some time in his home with his family, provided the home is clean and comfortable, the wife agreeable and the children reasonably well behaved.

Maybe he lacks paternal instinct; many men do. If this is the case he probably resents the fact that the children have pushed him out of his warm place and in this frame of mind he doesn't want to stay where he's being reminded of his demotion. Maybe he's sick and nervous to the point that he can't endure the commotion youngsters kick up. Maybe he has financial worries that keep him hunched and embarrassed before his wife. There are dozens of things that might account for his peculiar behavior. His wife should be able to find out the secret.

Second, if she can't locate the trouble and correct it, she can build a life for herself and the children that doesn't include her husband except as bacon buyer and regular boarder at the dinner table. When she no longer looks to him to be more than a background character for the family drama she isn't heavy hearted or long faced. She has her hands full planning for the show to go on, playing a dual role and coaching the children in their parts.

She can teach the children to respect their father by treating him with respect and explaining to them how he is really the producer who puts up the money to back the show. She can't make them love him (he has to do this) but she can save her face, his face and give the children a wholesome family life to which they are entitled.

Of course this isn't what she dreamed when she walked joyously down the church aisle beside her gallant bridegroom. But a woman can't give up when her dear dream is shattered, not if she has little ones whose lives she is responsible for. She has to hide her sorrow and make a happy home for them. She has to take her cue from the town who makes the children laugh, even if his own heart is breaking.

Four Aces Retain Trophy

By W. W. ANDERSON.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(AP)—The Four Aces, one of the bridge world's most powerful combinations, retained the Cavendish Club by a bare 230 points tonight to retain the national Vanderbilt trophy teams-of-four championship.

It was the closest margin for a winner in the 11-year history of the event and the fourth time in five years the Aces had taken the trophy donated by Harold S. Vanderbilt.

Last year the Aces won by 4,000 points over the Cavendish Club of Waldemar von Zedtwitz, Charles Lochridge, Theodore A. Lightner, B. Jay Becker and Edward Hynes Jr., who took Vanderbilt's place this year when the latter became ill.

After plugging up a lead of 1,260 points in yesterday's first 36 boards of the 72, the team of Oswald Jacoby, Howard Schenken, David Burnstine, M. D. Mailer and Sherman Stearns saved the match by smashing their score up to 3,380 points in the first nine boards of the second half.

Jacoby and Schenken squeezed contracts in this session for all they were worth but from there on, the Cavendish Club slashed the lead on each subsequent nine boards.

The runners-up, cutting the lead by 330 in the second nine, were aided by a 500-point swing when Lightner and Hynes bid.

three no-trump to make 400 after Schenken and Jacoby went down two for a 100 loss on a three no-trump bid.

One of the big swing hands for the Aces, who won in 1934, 1935 and 1937 and who also held the American Bridge League cup, came early in the last session. They ran up 980 points as Jacoby and Schenken made four spades, redoubled, for 780 as von Zedtwitz and Lochridge went down 200 at four hearts on the same board.

At the end of 63 boards, with only nine more to play, the Cavendish Club cut deeper into their opponents' score, trimming it from 3,050 to 1,900 points.

Mrs. Ford was assisted by her daughter, Miss Neville Ford, and Miss Hazel Robinson. Present were Patty Cogan, Joyce Kuchack, Martha Ann Wright, Mary Charles Davis, Virginia Coffin, Alva Osborne, Glenn, Bobby and Charles Ford, Allen Christopher, Bobby Robinson, Clayton Ford, Clifford Cole and Helen Jean Ford.

The super slam is an eight-bid. You must win all 16 tricks. The super slam has a scoring value of 1,500 not vulnerable, 2,000 when vulnerable.

Clever Bids to Horse Show Parties Predict a Shower of Festivities

By Sally Forth.

CLEVER pen and ink sketches illustrate the invitations to the social affairs honoring visiting and local exhibitors here for the tenth annual horse show to be presented May 6-8 at Fort McPherson by the Atlanta Horse Show Association under the sponsorship of the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls School.

Etched on white paper in folder effect, the unusual drawings were planned by Evan McConnell, whose idea for the invitations sets a precedent which will probably be followed in future years.

The paper folder is centered by a map of the eight southern states to be represented by prancing horses competing with the Atlanta mounts in the show. A star in the center designates Fort McPherson and six lines simulating lightning flashes extend to six individual cloud bursts where sketches illustrate the time and place of a shower of social affairs arranged for the show.

For instance, there is a drawing of the Piedmont Driving Club with the caption, "President's Breakfast, 11:30 O'clock Friday, May 6," this affair to usher in the three days' events.

Another "flash" goes to a drawing of the Pine Valley road home of Herbert Oliver, president of the Horse Show Association, and Mrs. Oliver, who will give an appetizer party following the first day's program. An outline of the ring at Fort McPherson and a box filled with goodies foretell the informal box lunch party to be given on the horse show grounds on Saturday morning, May 7.

In another cloud is a sketch of the Tuxedo Hunt Club and ring, which marks the locale of the cocktail party to be given Saturday evening preceding the dance at Brookhaven, the Capital City Country Club, sponsored by the Young Matrons' Circle. The club drawing is the end of another flash from the Fort McPherson center. And last, but not least, there is a drawing of the Fort McPherson Officers' Club, where exhibitors and officials will be honored at breakfast Sunday preceding the last day's show.

MRS. WILLIAM P. HILL, that noted iris whose ability has been recognized by the monthly bulletin of the American Iris Society and whose iris garden on West Peachtree street is one of the show places of the city, has been honored by having a new iris named Ruth Hill in her honor.

Mrs. Thomas B. Paine, whose horticultural ability is well known and whose garden on Peachtree Battle avenue contains a wealth of beautiful blossoms, has raised a new raisin-colored iris from a seed and has named it the Ruth Hill iris. Mrs. Hill's garden is full of iris in every imaginable color and Sally is sure that before long the exquisite Ruth Hill bloom will have a featured spot in the colorful array. Over an acre of iris is planted in the attractive garden, which is shielded from the street by a screen of green foliage.

SALLY hears that one of the attractive belles to be an attendant in the wedding of Deas Smith and Tom Fuller III, scheduled for June, will be Martha Hall, the beautiful brown-eyed, blond-haired daughter of Mrs. Edward Hall, of New York city.

Atlanta friends will remember Mrs. Hall as the former Miss Charles Owens, of Atlanta, who, during her young ladyhood, made her debut here and was one of Atlanta's reigning belles.

Martha, who inherits her mother's gracious manner and vivacity, has frequently visited her grandmother, Mrs. John S. Owens, here, and has won for herself a wide circle of Atlanta friends. She has not been to Atlanta in the last few years, so her arrival in June to visit Deas will be anticipated with much joy. Deas and Martha, as you know, are lifelong friends.

Visitor Honored.

Mrs. Ward Oehmann, of Chevy Chase, Md., formerly Miss Ellen Rhodes, was honored guest yesterday when her mother, Mrs. C. A. Rhodes, entertained at luncheon at her home on Brighton road.

Covers were placed for Mesdames Dewey Nabors, J. T. Williams, Jack Palmer, George Niles, George Williams, Loring Schmidt, of Salem, Ore.; James Crawford and Mrs. McCullough, and Miss Virginia Toombs.

Mrs. Oehmann will be honor guest Saturday, when Mrs. Louisa Berkholder entertains at luncheon.

Mrs. L. U. Hammond will entertain at a tea on Saturday at the Atlanta Woman's Club for Mrs. Oehmann.

Mrs. Virgil Shepard will give a luncheon on Tuesday for Mrs. Oehmann.

On Wednesday Mrs. B. O. Shackelford will be hostess at bridge and luncheon at her home on Lanier place for this popular visitor.

New officers of the Garden Club of Georgia, elected at the closing session of the tenth annual convention here yesterday, include, from left to right, Miss Madge Sherling, of Macon, second vice president; Mrs. Reynolds Flounoy, of Columbus, president; Mrs. Thomas M. Brumby, of Marietta, first vice president; and Mrs. Richard W. Johnston, of Atlanta, recording secretary. Other officers elected yesterday who are not in the photograph were Mrs. Sam Bennett, of Albany, third vice president; Mrs. Nathan Dykes, of Columbus, corresponding secretary; and Miss Jane Wright, of Savannah, treasurer.

By ANNIE LOU HARDY.

Mrs. Reynolds Flounoy, of Columbus, was unanimously elected president of the Garden Club of Georgia at the closing session of the tenth annual convention yesterday at the Biltmore hotel. She succeeds Mrs. Donald M. Hastings, of Atlanta, and Lovejoy, who has served most capably as president during the past two years.

The 1939 convention will be held at St. Simons Island, with the Glynn County Garden clubs as hostesses. The invitation was extended at the closing session by Mrs. Edwin Fendig, president of the Cassina Garden Club of St. Simons, with a tentative date set for May, 1939.

Other officers elected to serve with Mrs. Flounoy were Mrs. T. M. Brumby, of Marietta, first vice president; Miss Madge Sherling, of Macon, second vice president; Mrs. Sam Bennett, of Albany, third vice president; Mrs. Nathan Dykes, of Columbus, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Richard W. Johnston, of Atlanta, recording secretary; and Miss Jane Wright, of Savannah, treasurer. The slate of officers, which was elected unanimously, was returned by the nominating committee, which included Mrs. Warren Moise, of Atlanta, chairman; Mrs. Joseph McK. Speer, of Augusta, and Mrs. Dan Horgan, of Macon.

In opening yesterday's business session held in the Biltmore ballroom, Mrs. Hastings, as president, paid tribute to the general convention chairman, Mrs. Granger Hansell, to her co-chairman, Mrs. George Pratt, and to the presidents of the eight garden clubs acting as hostesses to the meeting, including Mrs. Robert Hodgson, of the Druid Garden Club; Mrs. Fred Colledge Jr., of the Rose Club; Mrs. V. K. Bowman, of the Magnolia Club; Mrs. Grady Black, of the Cherokee; Mrs. Trammell Scott, of the Peachtree; Mrs. Charles Currie, of the Habersham; Mrs. Bruce Hughes, of the Lenox Park; and Mrs. John O. Chiles, of the Piedmont.

Masculine Representatives.

The masculine contingent of garden club members was ably represented at the convention sessions by Donald Hastings, who, in addition to being husband of the retiring president, is an enthusiastic member of the Men's Garden Club, of Atlanta, by Hubert B. Owens, who represented the Franklinia Garden Club, of Athens, and who is highway improvement chairman for the state organization, and by A. J. Nitzsche, of Savannah, who serves the Georgia Garden Club as chairman of reforestation and fire prevention and who is a valued member of the Men's Garden Club, of Savannah.

Reporting for the credentials committee, Mrs. Fred Colledge Jr. reported 247 qualified voting delegates who cast votes on legislation passed yesterday. On recommendation from the resolutions committee headed by Mrs. Francis Dwyer, the club voted to elect officers of member clubs in March, to send both the new and retiring presidents to the state convention, and to install officers at a time suitable to each individual club.

The assembly adopted a resolution introduced by Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, of Montezuma, calling for a telegram to be sent by the club to the past president, Mrs. T. H. McHatton, of Athens, regretting her absence on account of a recent bereavement. On the recommendation of Mrs. A. L. Oliphant, of Vineville Garden Club, of Macon, the organization voiced a vote of thanks to the eight hostess clubs and the general chairman, to Mrs. Clyde King Jr., and Prince Webster for their invaluable aid in arranging transportation and to the owners of the gardens visited by the convention. A vote of thanks was also given to the Atlanta newspapers for the coverage and publicity given the convention and garden club activities.

Mrs. Walter King, of Cuthbert, as chairman of civic parks and gardens, recommended that the splendid work of the Peachtree Garden Club, of Atlanta, be entered as competition for the Kellogg civic award at the national council meeting to be held in June. This recommendation was adopted. Other recommendations included a vote of thanks to Roy Bowden, of the University of Georgia, for the monthly garden calendars he has prepared for "Garden Gateways," and to the state forestry department for its co-operation in conservation of wild plant life in Georgia.

Mrs. Neuhall Speaks.

An entertaining and informative speaker at the closing session was Mrs. Guy Neuhall, of Lynn, Mass., past president of the Greater Lynn Garden Club, who talked on "The Modern Trend in Programs." Discarding the value of social entertainments on garden club programs, Mrs. Neuhall stressed horticulture as an objective, with emphasis on the need of landscaping small gardens, the employment of able speakers, and the use of a professional instructor for group gardening. Valuable and timely suggestions offered by the speaker for Georgia clubs included the conservation of Georgia pines, the reducing of fire hazards, and as near as possible the abolition of billboards and the health-destroying ragweed.

The reports of the state committee chairmen were an interesting feature, the chairmen who reported including Hubert Owens, of Athens, highway improvement; Mrs. Hugh Dorsey, of Atlanta, conservation; Mrs. Reynolds Flounoy, of Columbus, flower shows; Mrs. Dan Horgan, of Macon, garden centers; Miss Edith Harrison, of Atlanta, horticulture; Mrs. Albert Fendig, of Brunswick, highway improvement; Mrs. Eugene Harrington, of Atlanta, publication; A. J. Nitzsche, of Savannah, reforestation and fire prevention; Mrs. Adrian Colquitt, of Thomasville, slides and the splendid work of Mrs. Eugene Harrington, editor of "Garden Gateways." The magazine now has 6,337 subscribers and has been declared by Fay Huttenlocher, of "Better Homes and Gardens," as the best state garden club publication in the United States. It has been chosen as a model by the Garden Club of Iowa, and has proven such invaluable aid to the Garden Club of Havana, Cuba, that the entire membership of that club is listed as subscribers.

Mrs. Flounoy's Record.

The choice of Mrs. Flounoy as president of the club for the next two years is a particularly fortunate one, for she has long been a leader in women's activities, with her special interest focused on garden club work. She organized the first garden club in Columbus, the Charter Garden Club, and also staged the first flower show ever held in that city. She has served as chairman of programs and slides on the state garden club board, and during the past two years was flower show chairman.

As a result of her concentrated interest in the development of horticulture, last year she received the achievement award offered annually by the Garden Club of Georgia, for bringing a camellia seed through every stage of planting and growth to its full bloom, a feat that few amateur gardeners are able to accomplish. Born Mattie Hatcher, representative of an old and aristocratic Georgia family, Mrs. Flounoy was educated at Wesleyan College, graduating with an A. B. degree and a degree in art. She is a member of the Phi Mu sorority, and is an outstanding figure in social and cultural life of Columbus.

Her interest in women's affairs has widened to include practically every organization in her home city. She is a past president of the Students' Club, has served as president of the Wynnton P.-T. A., and of the fourth district of P.-T. A., as president of the Woman's Missionary Society of St. Paul Methodist church, as an enthusiastic member of the Little Theater, and as a member of the Girl Scout Council and of the Girl Scout court of awards. Her only child is Mrs. Jack Passaligau, of Columbus.

Small of stature and brunet in coloring, Mrs. Flounoy radiates a charm and friendliness that instantly attract. Capable, intelligent and keenly alive to the problems of the day, she brings to the garden club presidency those qualities which a progressive organization needs and which her fellow members have recognized in her. She is a sister of Mrs. Susie Hatcher Boykin, of Columbus, who formerly resided in Atlanta.

Brilliant Regime.

In turning over her gavel to Mrs. Flounoy, Mrs. Hastings voiced her deep appreciation to her executive board for its sympathy, understanding, and complete co-operation, and to the entire assembly for the privilege of serving as president and for its backing in every undertaking. Her administration has been marked by brilliant achievements, notable among which was the establishment of an annual garden pilgrimage, the establishment of an annual garden school at the University of Georgia in Athens, and the record-breaking progress made by the official publication, "Garden Gateways." Mrs. Shepard Bryan, state treasurer, expressed the board's appreciation for Mrs. Hastings' splendid leadership, and the appreciation and affection of the assemblage for her loyalty and tireless efforts, with the entire convention rising as a mark of gratitude.

Following the final business session, the convention was entertained at luncheon at the Capital City Country Club at Brookhaven, with Mrs. Charles Currie, president of the Habersham Garden Club, and Mrs. Luther Rosser, chairman in charge of arrangements. Luncheon was served from two beautifully appointed buffet tables in the club dining room, with small tables for seating the guests arranged on the upper and lower terraces.

The clubhouse was decorated throughout with attractive arrangements of lavender and purple iris combined with lemon lilies. The small tables were graced with low bowls of pansies in tones of purple and yellow, and each guest was presented a small bouquet of pansies in the same colors. A novel arrangement of bubble bowls in the shape of a bouquet adorned the coffee table, the bowls being given as souvenirs to the guests at the end of the luncheon. Mrs. Douglas McCleskey, Mrs. Lawson Thornton, and Mrs. Charles Currie poured coffee.

Mrs. Francis Dwyer entertained the board members and distinguished guests at coffee at her home on Brookhaven drive immediately following luncheon. Mrs. Granger Hansell and Mrs. Robert Hodgson poured coffee, and the hostess was assisted by her mother and sister, Mrs. Edgar Craighead and Mrs. Wilson Lavender.

Presidents' Breakfast. Initiating yesterday's program of events, was held on the terrace of the Biltmore, with Mrs. Bruce Hughes, president of the Lenox Park Garden Club, in charge of arrangements. The tables were graced in the center with bowls of cornflowers and daisies, with the speakers' table set in yellow. Centering the speakers' table was a blue bowl filled with cornflowers and daisies, with the edge of the bowl festooned in clusters of strawberries.

was Miss Claudia Phelps, president of the Garden Club of South Carolina, who chose as her subject "Flower Shows and Judging Schools." In developing her topic, Miss Phelps stressed the connection between the shows and the schools, pointing out the great need of information as to the suitability of instructors, judges and lecturers in relation to flower shows.

"The majority of flower shows are like silent movies without captions," said Miss Phelps, "and it is up to the garden clubs to add the captions wherever possible by selecting judges suitable to the region and by properly exhibiting the results of their judging."

Concluding the tenth annual convention was the tour of five of the city's most beautiful gardens, including those of Mrs. Cobb Caldwell on Peachtree road, of Mrs. Francis Abreu and Mrs. W. H. Kiser on Pace's Ferry road, of Mrs. George Street on Wesley avenue, and Mrs. H. M. Atkinson on Habersham way.

Election of Mrs. A. M. Hill as Head of Georgia Federation Is Slated

MRS. ALBERT M. HILL.

By BESSIE S. STAFFORD,
Editor of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

ALBANY, Ga., April 27.—Mrs. Albert M. Hill, of Greenville, is slated for president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, according to the report of the nominating committee made today at the convention being held in Albany. Upon Mrs. Ralph Butler, of Dallas, will be conferred the honor of director for Georgia in General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Slated for election on Thursday to serve with Mrs. Hill are first vice president, Mrs. E. M. Bailey, of Acworth; second vice president, Mrs. John W. Jenkins, of Athens; recording secretary, Mrs. C. W. Henry, of Atlanta; treasurer, Mrs. John O. Braselton, of Braselton. The office of corresponding secretary comes under the appointment of the president. The election and installation takes place here on Thursday in the auditorium where sessions are being held.

Mrs. A. P. Brantley is chairman of the nominating committee which is composed of Mrs. J. W. Gholston, Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. B. F. Lewis, Mrs. Clifford Smith, Mrs. Leo Browning, Mrs. W. A. Hill, Mrs. Price Smith, Mrs. M. D. Dickerson, Mrs. C. E. Pittman and Mrs. John W. Jenkins.

Clubwomen will act Thursday upon five resolutions presented here on Wednesday. These measures were ready by Mrs. A. P. Brantley, of Blackshear, state resolutions chairman.

Proposed Resolutions.
The first asks clubwomen to unite in concerted effort to promote the transportation by trucks and public carriers of young women hitchhikers on highways in or through Georgia from adjacent states. It is incorporated in the resolution that this matter be taken before the General Federation of Women's Clubs in order that national action can be taken to correct this growing evil.

The resolution also asks that Georgia Federation endorse efforts made by high officials of the state in the endeavor to stop gambling and racketeering, and that members know the laws and obey state and nation laws and stand firmly for enforcement.

Endorsement will be asked of the bill providing federal aid for education including libraries, and to ask Georgia senators and congressmen to support the measure for good of Georgia schools and libraries.

Members will be asked to endorse the splendid work being done by National Forest Service in the plan for reforestation by planting pines, by protecting forests from destruction by fire, and by urging farmers to adopt the selective tree methods of cutting trees. Commendation will be made of the work of the Soil Conservation Service to conserve soil from erosion and request will be made that the celebration of Arbor Day be urged by the state.

Members of federation will be asked to discourage the sale and use of pistols, toy firearms, BB guns and air rifles.

Ella F. White, Tallulah Falls school, and Student Aid, the three educational foundations of Georgia Federation, highlight the Thursday program. Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick will report on the silver jubilee of Ella F. White, Mrs. John K. Ottley will talk about Tallulah, and Miss Marian Woodward will talk about Student Aid.

Mrs. Ottley's Presentation.
In presenting Judge Camille Kelley, of the juvenile court in Memphis, Tenn., who spoke in the municipal auditorium at the Wednesday evening session, Mrs. John K. Ottley, of Atlanta, said:

"Georgia's Federation of Women's Clubs welcomes with interest the distinguished speaker, whose service as a juvenile court judge stands second to none in the entire world. For, among the widely varied pioneer beginnings of the past 42 years, nothing more distinctive and far-reaching in results is written upon the Federation's shining record of achievement than the story of the actual beginning in the southern states of the entire juvenile offender system, which was begun 35 years ago because of Georgia clubwomen."

This film, starring two French favorites of the American public, Charles Boyer and Danielle Darrieux, is based on Claude Anet's books, "Fin d'Idylle." Its dramatic force, its historical characters, its tragic romance added to the perfect diction of its cast, ranks this film among the latest triumphs of French cinematography.

There are also English superimposed titles for those unfamiliar with spoken French.

cess of six months of its operation in the city of Atlanta to the entire city of Georgia.

"Federated Clubs may indeed prize their rank as pioneers in behalf of numberless great social movements, among which none is more outstanding than this one in behalf of the youth of our land. Among results, some of them far from desirable, which have followed upon the misuse of adult probation, there can be no question that the juvenile court and the probation system for children under 16 has always been and always will be the state of hope in what often seems a very gloomy social sky," concluded Mrs. Ottley.

Judge Kelley's Address.
Religious training is as essential to children as bread and is "the only safeguard against modern-day shell-shock of fast living," Judge Kelley, of Memphis, told Georgia clubwomen.

"One of the dangers of youth, with its untold values," Judge Kelley said, "is to look more for pleasure than for the joy of service."

"We should make the behavior road safe for children, through legislation, a well-balanced educational program and adequate institutional facilities," she said.

"We should set an example of self-discipline and, since we can't slow down, we should speed up mentally and spiritually in order to keep up with modern conditions and requirements."

"Children must learn obedience and discipline or know no freedom."

Miss Amelia Hewlett To Be Feted At Series of Prenuptial Parties

Mrs. Hugh M. Lokey entertains today at a bridge party at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harold Martin, at 146 Seventh street, commencing Miss Amelia Hewlett, attractive bride-elect, whose marriage to Tom Perkinson will be solemnized on May 11.

Mrs. Harold Martin and Mrs. Hugh Lokey Jr. will assist their mother in entertaining and guests will include Mrs. Samuel Hewlett, mother of the honor guest; Mrs. Howard Perkinson, of Marietta, the bride's maid and sister of the ushers. Tea will be served at 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Alex W. Smith Jr. will give a luncheon to compliment Miss Hewlett and Miss Deas Smith, also a bride-elect, next Tuesday. On May 4 Miss Martha Johnson Gramling will entertain at a bridge-luncheon at her home in Marietta honoring Miss Hewlett. Mrs. Albert Alexander has planned a luncheon in honor of the bride-to-be for May 5, at her home on Anjaco road.

May 6, Mrs. Joseph Winslow will be hostess at a luncheon at her home on Peachtree way with Miss Hewlett as central figure. Miss Guy Northcutt, of Marietta, has planned a luncheon for May 7, this affair to take place at her home. That afternoon Mrs. Earl Cone Jr. will give a tea at the home of her mother, Mrs. H. B. Scott, on Aldgonne drive, instead of at her home on Collier road, as was previously announced.

Miss Wilena Upshaw, of Eufula, Ala., will entertain for Miss Hewlett at a party on May 9. Miss Laura Hill will compliment the bride-elect at a luncheon May 10, and that evening Miss Dorothy Sanford will be hostess at the rehearsal party at the Biltmore hotel, instead of at her home on West Andrews drive.

Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Osborne entertained last evening at an alfresco party at Buckeye, their country place on the Chattahoochee river near Roswell, honoring Miss Helen Hill Hopkins and Augustus Herrington Sterne, whose marriage will be a brilliant event of tomorrow afternoon.

Beautiful climbing roses, mountain laurel and yellow flowers arranged in white containers added to the beauty of the alfresco scene and formed a background for the wedding party.

Miss Martha de Golan was hostess at luncheon yesterday at her home on Howell Mill road, honoring Miss Hopkins. Mrs. Felix de Golan assisted her daughter in entertaining.

Present were Misses Hopkins, Carroll Hopkins, Elizabeth Hopkins, Betty Bailey, Emily Smith, Clara Haverly, Mesdames Ed Smith and D. N. McCullough.

Bowie. A round-table discussion of business affairs was held. At an early date the class will give a bridge benefit.

Henry Treadwell Rites Solemnized
Miss Frances Elizabeth Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Henry, of Atlanta, and John Ozmer Treadwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Treadwell, of Decatur, were quietly married Sunday morning at 9 o'clock in the garden of the Rev. V. W. Thompson, on Flat Shoals road. Rev. Thompson performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families and close friends.

The bride wore a two-piece model of white crepe. The blouse was made of lace with crepe bow. A white hat and accessories, with a shoulder spray of gardenias and valley lilies completed her ensemble.

After the ceremony Mr. Treadwell and his bride left for a wedding trip to Washington, D. C. For traveling Mrs. Treadwell wore heavy blue alpaca with blue accessories.

CONSTITUTION'S DAILY CROSS WORD PUZZLE

MR. ZERO

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH

INSTALLMENT XX.

He got up and walked up and down the room. The window was open. Francis Colesborough had gone out that way. There was a drawer pulled out on one side of the writing table, pulled out in a hurry and left. He stood looking down at it without touching anything. He wondered what had been taken from it in that last hurry, and saw some cartridges lying there and thought, "It was his own pistol. He snatched it up and went out." There was a sheet of paper on the blotting pad, a letter just begun.

Algy bent down and read it as it lay a little crookedly on the pale yellow blotting paper.

There was no beginning. That halted him, because there was something strange in a letter which discarded all the usual forms. The strangeness sounded a warning bell. The check was momentary, yet in that moment he had braced himself against what might come. Without any change of expression he read:

"You disturb yourself unnecessarily. Neither Zero nor the agent is in the least suspicious. This rests in quite another quarter. M. L. has decided—"

The writing broke off there.

Algy Somers went back to the butler's pantry and rang up Montagu Lushington, and while he was on the telephone the police arrived.

Colonel Anstruther, in charge of police, leaned back in his chair and frowned at Inspector Boyce. He had been a chief constable for ten years without ever coming to closer quarters with a cause celebre than the pages of his daily newspaper. He now found himself threatened with a sensational publicity from which no man in the British Isles was more averse. He had an exact and orderly mind, and disapproved of crimes which could not be immediately docketed and pigeon-holed.

He drummed on the arm of his chair and said, "The home office is sending a man down. You'll have to take instructions from him as to the political issues involved. He will be present when the safe is opened, and so will Sir Francis Colesborough's lawyer."

"That was a queer letter, sir," said Inspector Boyce.

"Damned queer. Damned treasonable, if you ask me. Home office report on sabotage missing, Lady Colesborough confessing she took it under instructions from a blackmailer who calls himself Mr. Zero, and her husband, whom she thought was going to kill her if he found out, writing, 'Neither Zero nor the agent is under the least suspicion.' This means Francis Colesborough was in on that business, and Lord knows what he shall find when we open his safe. 'Neither Zero nor the agent—' Now suppose Francis Colesborough was Zero—the agent very probably his wife. They were staying at Wellings when the paper was missed. She's a pretty, silly woman. Suppose her husband put her on to getting the paper for him. Well, say she did not—what was she doing last night? She says—where's that statement of hers?" He plucked it angrily from the desk and leaned back again, "yes, here we are. She says: 'I went into the yew walk to meet a man who called himself Mr. Zero. I have never seen him and I do not know his real name. He said my husband was keeping some of his letters, and he induced me to take them out of the safe in our London house and bring them down to Cole Lester. He said they were his property and would have his name on them. I found a package which was marked 'Zero.' It was this I took into the yew walk. I did not take any pistol with me. There is a window in the yew hedge. When I reached this window Mr. Zero was there, but on the other side of the hedge and behind it so that I did not see him. He asked me whether I had the letters, and when I replied in the affirmative he told me to hand them over quickly. I heard my husband coming on the outside of the hedge to the left of the window. Mr. Zero was on the right. They were both outside the hedge, and I was inside. My husband called out. He said angrily, 'I don't remember whether Mr. Zero said anything then. They began to fight. I had a torch. I saw a pistol in my husband's hand. I think Mr. Zero got it away from him. They were fighting just outside the window, and I was very frightened. I heard Mr. Zero say, 'Now what about it?' and 'Take that!' There was a shot. I don't know what happened to Mr. Zero or the letters. I thought I was going to faint. I thought my husband was dead. I picked up the pistol—'

Sylvia and the official mind had obviously collaborated. The result enraged Colonel Anstruther. He repeated the last sentence angrily.

"She says, 'I picked up the pistol.' What does she mean? What's the good of letting her make a statement like this? How could she pick it up if it was the other side of the hedge?"

Inspector Boyce gave a slight cough.

"She says it wasn't, sir."

"Wasn't what?"

"Wasn't on the other side of the hedge, sir."

Colonel Anstruther glared.

"Does she or doesn't she state that she was on the inside of the hedge and the two men on the outside?"

"Yes, sir."

"And that one of them had the pistol and the other got it from him?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then how the devil could she pick it up inside the hedge?"

"I don't know, sir."

"Then why didn't you ask her? If she says a thing like that she's got to explain it, hasn't she?"

Inspector Boyce stiffened and reverted to the extreme official manner.

"I did not omit to put that point to Lady Colesborough. She replied that she had no recollection of what occurred between the firing of the shot and the picking up of the pistol. If you will refer to the statement, sir—"

Colonel Anstruther referred to the unsatisfactory document. He read in an annoyed voice:

"There was a shot I don't know what happened to the letters. I don't know what happened to Mr. Zero. I thought I was going to faint. I thought my husband was dead. I picked up the pistol—"

"Well, what about it? The pistol is outside, and she is inside, and she says she picked it up. What's the thickness of the hedge? I suppose you've measured it?"

"Six foot thick mostly, sir, but this window affair is cut in and there's not more than a four-foot thickness there."

"What's the size of the window?"

"Three foot high and six foot wide, sir. There's a seat inside, placed facing it to get the view. And there's this window, with a four-foot sill and the hedge jutting out beyond it on either side for a couple of feet. She says they were fighting just outside, but unless the man who fired the pistol threw it in through the window after he had fired I don't see how it got to the same side of the hedge as Lady Colesborough, or how she picked it up."

Colonel Anstruther looked up sharply.

"Is there any proof that there were two men on the other side of the hedge? Anything to substantiate Lady Colesborough's story of the fight?"

Inspector Boyce coughed.

"Dr. Hammond says the pistol must have been at least a yard away from Sir Francis when the shot was fired. There aren't any foot prints. There's nothing to show whether there was a fight. Lady Colesborough says this man who calls himself Zero was there, and she says he fired the shot, but there isn't anyone else that saw him, and we can't find anyone that heard or saw a car."

Colonel Anstruther said "Tcha!" and added, "What did you expect to find? People in Colebrook don't sit up at night counting cars, do they? I don't suppose anyone heard Mr. Somers' car either, did they?"

"Well, no, sir, they didn't."

"Well then, what's the good of telling me nobody heard a car?"

"You asked if there was any evidence."

Colonel Anstruther made an explosive sound.

"And there isn't any! I take it there's no doubt that the weapon used was Colesborough's own pistol."

"No doubt at all, sir. Sir Francis kept the pistol in a box in his writing-table— we found the drawer pulled out. He'd got a license and all quite regular. Sturrock, the butler, says there was a pair of them, but we haven't been able to find the other. It may be up at the London house."

Colonel Anstruther went back to the statement with a snort.

He read aloud: "I picked up the pistol. I heard someone coming down the yew walk. It was my cousin, Miss Hardwicke. She came up to the seat. She had a torch. She came round the seat to look out of the window. I dropped the pistol and ran to the right along the hedge. There is a way out into the rose garden there. I went that way because I heard someone coming down the main walk and I was frightened. I ran to the house and rang the alarm bell in the hall. It rings in the servants' wing. I told them my husband had been shot. After that I fainted."

ELECTRIC LIGHTS.
News about the work of Volta, the Italian, traveled to England and there it was read by a young man named Humphry Davy. He was only 22 years of age at the time, but he was wide awake, and much interested in all that had to do with science.

One hundred thousand watt "incandescent lamp" made for display.

When the current passed through a piece of well-burnt charcoal, and jumped to another piece of charcoal, he found it made a good-sized spark.

"If I used a great number of cells for power, could I produce a spark so bright as to make a good light?" the young Englishman wondered.

As a test, Davy made a battery of 150 cells. This produced a fairly good light, and made him decide to go on with the work and make a still more powerful battery.

Helped by money given him by friends, Davy put together a battery containing 2,000 cells! What a battery it was, and what a spark it produced! A dazzling light came as the spark "arched" from one piece of charcoal to the other. Davy was 29 years of age when he showed his 2,000-cell battery and "arch light" to the public. Later it came to be called an "arc light."

The arc light did not come into wide use until better ways of obtaining electric power were learned. About the year 1850, however, dynamos good enough to supply a steady electric current were made. The streets of Paris and other cities then were brightened with arc lights at night.

The arc light worked well for the streets, but it was not suited to inside houses. A 31-year-old American inventor—Thomas Edison—set to work on the problem of making a good light for homes. With the help of other men, he at length brought forth the incandescent or "glowing" light. It was made up of carbon inside a glass bulb from which the air had been pumped. An electric current made the carbon so hot that it glowed.

Edison ranks as probably the greatest inventor in all history. I shall have more to say of his work at some future time.

Many other inventors have worked on electric lights, and they have given us the excellent lights we have today. Streets are now lighted with incandescent lamps. Several years ago a 100,000-watt lamp was made, but it was too powerful for any practical use, and was employed only for public display.

The British Who's Who in Golf Calls Jones 'Wonder Golfer'

LONDON, England.—(By Mail)—England's Walker cup team, which will golf against Atlanta's Charley Yates and other members of the American team in early June, must be the most picturesque team ever assembled to play for the British Isles.

John Fitzsimmons, the Irish open champion, is a bartender at the Royal Portrush Club in Ireland.

Andrew Dowie, one of the Scots selected, is a cigar store clerk who recently won a very large sum of money on a sweep-stake ticket.

One of the comforting features, for the British, is the appearance of J. Graham, son of Alan Graham, who defeated Bobby Jones in the British amateur of 1921. The British take some hope in that. Their team is not believed to be the strongest they have sent against the Americans but they believe it may have a bit of luck and that the courses, with their winds and their greens, will be fighting for them.

Other members of the team are, for the most part, made up of experienced men. Eight members of the squad of 25, which will compete for the places, have had Walker cup experience.

There is, of course, the usual growl in England. The selection committee did not invite the Scottish amateur champion, Hamilton McNally. But, with a bartender on the list, no one is accusing the committee of being undemocratic.

Twelve Englishmen, eight Scots, three Irishmen and two Welshmen make up the squad of 25 which will begin elimination rounds on May 5, at St. Andrews, where the matches will be played. Form, not results, will decide the final selection and places will be left open for the winner and runner-up of the British amateur championship which is to be played at Troon, Scotland, beginning May 23. The British hope they may win this one.

WHO'S WHO IN GOLF.

The British Who's Who in golf, begins its lists as follows: "King George VI. By the grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the seas, King; Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India, Sovereign of the Orders of the Garter, the Thistle, St. Patrick, the Bath, the Star of India, St. Michael and St. George and the Indian Empire. (Frederick Arthur George), b. 14th, December, 1895; . . . succeeded to the crown on the abdication of his brother, King Edward VIII, on 12th December. Golf clubs, Royal and Ancient, Royal Burgess Golfing Society of Edinburgh. Was captain of the former when Duke of York in 1930. Served in the British navy 1914-18 and fought at the Battle of Jutland. Address—Buckingham Palace."

Then follows the name of "Windsor, Duke of. Edward, Duke of Windsor, has two holes-in-one to his credit. One of the Royal Wimbledon and one at Santos, Brazil."

In looking through the list of the world's golfers, I am constrained to advise Mr. Bobby Dodd, the scourge of East Lake and Capital City, that there is only one Dodd deemed good enough to be listed and that Dodd is a lady who now has married and no longer is named Dodd.

Running through the names brought up a lot of memories. What ever did become of George Von Elm, who was to do such great things as a "businessman golfer?"

Bobby Jones is referred to as "the wonder golfer."

The oldest club in England is the Royal Blackheath, instituted in 1608. The Royal and Ancient at St. Andrews is comparatively new, being instituted in 1754. Golf, however, was played at St. Andrews in 1400. Georgia, I think, has the distinction of having the first golf club. But whether it was merely social or actually had a golf course, no one seems to know.

GOLF IN ARMOR.

The British yearbook records some odd events in golf. In 1912, a Mr. Harry Dearth played a match while attired in a complete suit of heavy armor. He lost, 2 and 1. Imagine a suit of armor on Capital City's hills in late July or August!

Golf from a plane was tried in 1932 with the pilot dropping balls to the green. He made each green, requiring 29 "strokes."

One of the more interesting "stunts" was attempted in 1924 at the English club of Littlehampton. Harry Rowndtree, an amateur, played the best ball of Edward Ray and George Duncan, receiving an allowance of 150 yards to use as he saw fit during the round.

Rowndtree defeated the two famous professionals by 6 and 5. At one hole Duncan had a two. Rowndtree was 25 yards from the hole and therefore took that much of his distance and won with "one."

Ray afterwards declared that if he was conceded a handicap of one yard per round, he would win every championship in the world. He declared that very often the matter of a fraction of an inch decided a putt or that an inch or so difference in the lie of a ball would make for a lower score. Many such matches have been tried in England.

It has been found that a player with a handicap of 18 can make a close match with a scratch player if given a handicap of 100 yards.

The idea is one the boys may try in Atlanta. It would vary some of the Saturday and Sunday tournaments. A yardage handicap.

TRAMMELL SCOTT WILL BE HONORED AT ROME OPENING

Oglethorpe and Tubize Clash Friday in City's First Night Game.

ROME, Ga., April 27.—Major Trammell Scott, president of the Southern league, will be an honor guest as Rome inaugurates night baseball Friday night at the Tubize athletic field.

Tubize, a member of the Northwest Textile league, will play Frank Anderson's Oglethorpe Petrels in northwest Georgia's first night baseball game.

An extensive program, starting at 7:30 o'clock, will formally dedicate the new lighted field, President Scott pulling the switch that will start the 200,000-candlepower lighting system into action.

Eddie Reese, president of the Northwest league, will pitch the first ball.

A special display of fireworks will be fired just prior to the start of the ball game and Rome's school children will help celebrate the opening with a march around the field in special costumes.

"Dizzy" Dean, who formerly pitched for the Petrels, will face his old mates.

Atco defeated Oglethorpe, 8 to 7, in the last game for the Atlanta team by a Rome nine.

Scott Will Speak At Griffin Tonight.

GRIFFIN, Ga., April 27.—Major Trammell Scott, of Atlanta, president of the Southern Baseball Association, will speak to members of the Griffin Rotary Club Thursday night. Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta Crackers, will accompany Scott here.

TECH TRACKMEN MEET BULLDOGS

ATHENS, Ga., April 27.—(AP)—Experts predicted few points will separate Georgia and Georgia Tech when the final event is finished in a track meet here Saturday.

Coch Weems Baskin's Bulldogs, champions of the Southeastern conference, suffered their first defeat in dual competition last Saturday when Auburn won a 63-23 to 62-1-3 decision.

Feature race of the day in the Tech meet will be the mile run, which puts "Chick" Aldridge, the Jacket captain, against Georgia's sophomore star, Henry Fredrickson. "Reddy" is joint holder of the local track record for the mile, having covered it in 4 minutes and 27 seconds against Clemson two weeks ago. Bob Young is the other holder of the record.

PETRELS DEFEAT BULLDOGS, 6 TO 4, TO EVEN SERIES

Clement Hurls Oglethorpe to Victory at Ponce de Leon.

By TOM McRAE. Oglethorpe defeated the University of Georgia nine, 6 to 4, yesterday at Ponce de Leon park to gain an even break in the four-game series.

Ed Clement pitched steady ball for the Petrels, having only one bad inning, the fourth, when the Bulldogs scored three runs. After that he didn't allow a run and struck out six men.

Oglethorpe started the scoring in the first. C. King walked and was sacrificed to second by Downe. Barnett singled, scoring King. Barnett stole second and came home on Paulk's double.

Georgia got one in the second. McCaskill beat out an infield hit, stole second, and tallied on Newsum's single.

The Bulldogs scored three in their half of fourth. Walker got an infield hit. Stallings hit a long double, Walker scoring. Thomas singled and Stallings stopped at third. Thomas attempted to steal and Stevenson let the ball get away from him. Stallings made a dash for the plate and Stevenson's throw was wild, allowing Stallings to score and Thomas to go to third. Thomas scored on Thornton's long fly.

The Petrels likewise got three in their half of the fourth. Barnett and Paulk hit successive singles. Barnett stopping at second. In an attempt to catch Barnett off second, Newsum muffed the throw and let both runners advance a base. Decker hit a sharp single to left, scoring both men.

Then Cecil Kelley made his first error of the season at a crucial moment. Thomas hit a perfect double play ball and Cecil erred on it. R. King bunted and Miller fielded it nicely and would have thrown out King, but no one was covering first. This filled the bases. Miller struck out Clements and walked C. King, forcing in a run. Then Downe hit into a double play, ending the inning. Oglethorpe got their last run in the seventh on C. King's single and Stevenson's double.

Wally Miller pitched good ball for Georgia. Only three of the Petrels' runs were earned. He allowed nine hits, two of the scratch variety, and struck out five men.

BULL LEA, MENOW HEAD ELIGIBLES IN WARMUP RACE

Four Derby Candidates Run in Final Public Trials Today.

BY ORLO ROBERTSON.
NEW YORK, April 27. (AP)—Four Kentucky Derby favorites, two of which are rated high in the two future books, receive their final public trials for the May classic at Churchill Downs where they clash in the mile and are eighth in the $5,000 Blue Grass stakes at Keeneland.

The four are Warren Wright, Bull Lea, Hal Price Headley's Menow and Dah He and Red Rebs from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Green tree stable. Bull Lea and Menow 1937 juvenile champion, are the two highest regarded colts.

The Wright ace is favorite to take the stakes largely because he hung up a new track record in whipping Menow in a mile and a sixteenth race at Keeneland last week. That was the first indication carry his speed more than a mile. Unless he shows to a better advantage tomorrow, he'll probably be reserved for the Preakness and the Headley Derby hopes left in Bourbon King.

Three lesser known Derby nominees go in a mile and 70-yard race at Jamaica but only one of them is considered a probable starter in the big race. He is Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Great Union. The other two are Madero and Anal flame, stablemates of Fighting Fox in William Woodward's Belair stud.

Jack Doyle Pares Odds On Stagehand for Derby

HEAVY SUPPORT REDUCES FIGURE FROM 3-1 TO 13-5

Louis 7-5 Over Maxie; Admiral Is Decided Edge Over Biscuit.

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, April 27.—(UP)—Jack Doyle, veteran Broadway prizefighter, quoted the following betting odds today on four "big-discussion" sports events.

(1) Louis is the 7-5 favorite over Schmeling for their heavyweight title fight at Yankee stadium on June 22.

(2) The price has shortened considerably on Stagehand, favorite for the Kentucky Derby at Louisville, Ky., on May 7. Heavy support pared the figure against Stagehand from 3-1 to 13-5. Fighting Fox and Menow share second choice at 6-1 each.

(3) War Admiral is a distinct favorite to beat Seabiscuit in their $100,000 match race at Belmont Park on Memorial Day, with only 3-5 offered against the Admiral, and 6-5 offered against the Biscuit.

(4) Because of the Dizzy Dean deal, the Chicago Cubs now are co-favorites with the New York Giants to win the National League pennant, with 2-2 offered against the chances of each. Pittsburgh is third choice at 3-1, and the St. Louis Cardinals are fourth at 6-1. Doyle predicted that the War Admiral-Seabiscuit match race would be the biggest betting event, not only of 1938, but probably in the history of sports.

MRS. J. C. WRIGHT WINS TITLE, 3-2

Mrs. J. C. Wright, president of the Atlanta Women's Golf Association, defeated Mrs. W. D. Tumlal, 3-2, Wednesday morning on the Ansley Park course to win the April match play tournament. It was the first tournament play of the year for the association and was extended over a period of several weeks.

Not only did Mrs. Wright win the tournament, but she won the low gross prize with a 91, with Mrs. Tumlal four strokes back in second place.

Mrs. W. C. Vines won the first flight of Class B, with a 1-up victory over Mrs. John Welch, and Mrs. George Griffin won the second flight of Class B with a 7-6 victory over Mrs. Henry Hubbard.

Mrs. Miles Metzger defeated Mrs. C. Baker, 6-5, to win Class C championship.

Other winners in the low gross prize list included Mrs. W. C. Wootton, Mrs. Max Metzger, Mrs. Rainhardt and Mrs. Conn.

Mrs. A. J. Kaiser proved the best putter. She had only 31 putts for the 18 greens for first prize. Mrs. C. Clower was second, with Mrs. Metzger, Mrs. Mark Larned, Mrs. Jimmy Williams and Mrs. C. Wetzel following in order.

The Atlanta Women's Golf Association will resume its weekly one-day tournaments next Tuesday on the Capital City course.

It will be the final competitive and practice round before the Southern Women's tournament May 9 at Birmingham, Ala.

TARZAN THE FEARLESS

No. 82

By Maxon

When Tarzan, after a slow ascent, approached the mountain cave, Nikma greeted him with excited chatter. The little monkey poured into his ear a half-incoherent tale of how the white stranger had been about to shoot Tarzan with the dreadful thunder-stick.

Tarzan smiled. He knew Nikma's wild imagination. Perhaps, he thought, Jeff had aimed at an antelope. He had seen several as he came up the mountain. And now, he surmised, Jeff had gone hunting, and had taken Mary with him rather than leave her here alone.

The ape-man was undisturbed. Jeff and Mary would be back soon, he believed, and there was no danger in the vicinity of the cave. Tarzan stretched himself on the ground, like a beast at ease. A little rest would relieve the soreness of his injured arm.

Meanwhile, Jeff and Mary were far down the valley. In his exuberance, Jeff caught Mary's arm. "Now that we're engaged, practically married, let's have a little kiss." Mary tried to pull away, but Jeff, self-confident and exultant, pulled her to him.

YOUTH IS CONVICTED OF CAPES SLAYING

Sam Wheat Weeps as He Reads Own Confession to Cobb County Jury.

MARIETTA, Ga., April 27.—Broken in spirit, an erstwhile "model" youth, who for a brief time lived by the gun, today took the witness stand in Cobb superior court here and wept as he read to an amazed jury a confession which will send him to the electric chair for murder.

At 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the same dim-lit courtroom, Sam J. Wheat Jr., 19, will hear Judge J. H. Hawkins pronounce the dread sentence which will number his days.

Wheat was convicted this afternoon of the robbery and fatal shooting of W. W. Capes, 78-year-old operator of a Bankhead highway store near Austell, the night of January 7. The jury's verdict, without recommendation of mercy, made the death penalty mandatory.

Character Witnesses. The youthful killer's confession followed closely on the heels of character testimony by five faculty members of Douglas County High school, where he had made a record as a "model" student. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam J. Wheat Sr., of Lithia Springs, seated at the defense table, wept as he told his story of crime.

Wheat was arrested by Camden, N. J., city police February 2, as a robbery suspect, and shortly thereafter was returned to Georgia and lodged in Fulton tower, Atlanta, where he signed a confession saying he obtained $11.20 in the Capes robbery.

"He had a shotgun," he said. "When I told him to 'drop that gun or I'll shoot,' he raised it to his shoulder. I had to shoot him."

He related how he carried Capes, wounded, to his bed before robbing the store.

In the same confession, young

'What's That, Senator?' TVA Probers Meet

Senator Vic Donahey, left, Ohio, Democrat, was elected chairman of the $50,000 congressional investigation yesterday and Representative Mead, at right, a New York Democrat, was named vice chairman. The committee requested the general accounting office to turn over its records on TVA and then recessed indefinitely.

Wheat admitted a series of five Douglas county burglaries, three holdups in Cobb county, and two burglaries and two automobile larcenies in Atlanta.

Capes died in an Atlanta hospital March 4, and five days later Douglas and Fulton counties shelved their complaints and surrendered Wheat to Cobb county authorities. He was indicted here on a charge of murder.

After voting to request the general accounting office for its records on TVA, the committee recessed indefinitely.

CARDINAL URGES BOYCOTT OF FILMS

World Being Flooded With Filth, O'Connell Says.

BOSTON, April 27.—(UP)—William Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, today urged Catholic women to war on indecent dress, plays, movies, books and magazines.

"Now the world is being flooded with what can only be called dirt, filth in every form," he told the second diocesan congress of Catholic women.

"Theaters ring bells and in they flock to be contaminated by that filthy stuff. A woman who can sit through that stuff shouldn't go to church."

He urged a boycott on movies. "You must do without them if you want to save your soul."

CREEKMORE DENIES COTTON 'SHORTING'

Co-operative Head Says Incentive Is Lacking To Underclass Staple.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(AP) E. F. Creekmore, manager of the American Cotton Co-operative Association, told the senate agriculture committee today there was "no incentive" for the co-operative to understate the quality of cotton handled for farmers in connection with the government's 12-cent loan on the 1934 crop.

He made this statement in answering pointed questions by Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, about allegations by committee investigators that farmers lost millions of dollars on underclassing of loan cotton by the co-operative.

"Even if I or any other official of the co-operative wanted to underclass cotton for some reason it would have been impossible to corrupt the two or three hundred officials who did the classing," Creekmore said.

Earlier Bankhead had asked Creekmore how ACCA selected its classes and whether any "instructions or directions, written or otherwise, had been given to underclass cotton."

"Absolutely not," Creekmore replied.
